Links of Empire.

One of the most interesting aspects of the Imperial problem was discussed at the Premiers' conference on Wednesday. The British league of nations is the most ungainly Commonwealth of all time, and, now that an attempt is being made to establish political cohesion between its scattered parts, the need for a vastly improved system of communications is obvious. At present the home country has two links with its Dominions—the steamship and the cable. Canada is the only country in the Empire that can communicate directly with Britain by wireless telegraphy. Mr. W. M. Hughes, the Premier of Australia, laid stress on the disadvantages which accrue from this unsatisfactory condition of affairs. If the Empire's peoples do not think in the same way about the same things, they are bound to lose contact with one another. Britain must be kept in touch with overseas opinion, just as the Dominions must be able to learn the British point of view on all matters of common importance. Mr. Hughes pressed for the development of a wireless telephony service. The cables, he said, were very unsatisfactory, and more especially in matters of foreign policy, which brook no delay, real Imperial unity would be impossible until direct speech could be held between London, Capetown, Ottawa, Melbourne, and Wellington. At the present time Mr. Hughes's proposal is hardly practicable; but undoubtedly the cable services can, and must, be improved. Also communication by wireless telegraphy can be developed enormously. If Britain will agree to build a station, Australia will follow suit.

A small committee has been set up to consider the whole problem of communications. The importance of improved cable and "wireless" services between the various Governments is apparent; but of equal—possibly, indeed, of greater—importance is the need for freer and more rapid intercourse between the peoples of the Commonwealth. According to Mr. Hughes, the steamship service between Britain and Australia is worse now than it was five and twenty years ago. He suggested that, pari passu with the "speeding-up" of communication by sea, a service by air should be established. By a system of airship relays, he said, Melbourne could be brought within ten days of London; and, as the Karachi-Bagdad-Cairo service, according to Mr. Churchill, is about to carry mails in the near future, there seems to be no insuperable obstacle in the way of his plan. At present a letter between Britain and Australia does not reach its destination until from thirty-five to forty days after it was written. With a quicker mail service letter-writing would become far more general between all the Dominions and the home country. The point is of some importance, as the value of this method of intercourse scarcely can be over-estimated. Naturally, no improvement of any kind is possible without expense, and Britain is on her last legs so far as ready money is concerned. None of the Dominions, however, is likely to shirk its responsibility in this respect. The ideal to be pursued is a co-ordination of services via water, air, and ether. The resources of science are at the disposal of the Empire if it will use them.

The most valuable of all methods of communication, however, is the newspaper Press, and in this connection all the Dominion Premiers expressed dissatisfaction. The cable service is so dear that Canada, for example, gets nearly all its British news from America. Mr. Meighen told the Conference that Canada received her news from overseas only after it had been "censored" by the American authorities. "I do not mean the Government authorities," he said, "but from the American standpoint; it has as a result an undesirable influence, and a very serious influence it is." The other Dominions, and Canada, too, suffer in a different way. The British newspapers virtually ignore them. "Little, if any, Canadian news," said Mr. Meighen, "reaches England. Your newspapers are simply selling goods and they find that our news does not sell." Sir Thomas Smartt made the same complaint. "I have looked at the papers," he said, "and, so far as the Union of South Africa is concerned, I think that I have hardly seen a single reference to what is taking place in that country. If somebody had run away with another man's wife—and he was a wealthy man—no doubt it would have been flashed over the wires." This is a very serious matter. Unless the people at home are kept acquainted with thought and movement in the Dominions, they will lose interest in the Empire. Think of the amount of space that is being devoted nowadays to sport and "society" scandals; think of the boxing match last week in New Jersey. There is hardly a man or woman in these islands who does not know the name of Carpentier's infant daughter; how many people could give offhand the name, say, of the Premier of New South Wales? The Briton at home will not understand the Colonial's point of view until he is provided with a better service of overseas news.

The Golden Fleece.

Next week the Reparations Commission will concentrate its thoughts on the past. It has been asked to settle a claim of romantic interest and the task will involve the exploration of some little-known by-ways of history. Belgium, exercising the right that the Treaty of St. Germain conferred upon her, has demanded from Austria the return of a varied collection of treasures. The list includes coins, medals, a curious old map of the Low Countries, the famous Rubens Triptych of St. Ildephonse, and the Treasure of the Golden Fleece. About some of the articles there will be no dispute. Austria admits that they were not gained by legitimate means and they will be returned forthwith. The Triptych and the Golden Fleece, however, fall into a different category, and each side will adduce a mass of evidence in support of its case. The picture, which represents the Madonna, together with the Archduke Albert and his wife Isabella, is of great artistic value. It found a home in Vienna as a result of its purchase by Maria Theresa when the chapel which it adorned in Brussels was demolished. The Belgians do not deny these facts, but they will raise a number of arguments concerning the origin of the funds with which the purchase was made. The fight for the Golden Fleece will eclipse all others in point of interest. It will involve a survey of five hundred years of European history, and each side is equipped with a formidable array of facts and dates. It was in the fifteenth century that the Golden Fleece, which became, and remained until the dismemberment of the Austrian Empire, one of the greatest Orders of Knighthood, was founded by Philip the Good, of Burgundy, who counted himself Sovereign of the Low Countries. This fact seems to form the basis on which Belgium's claim to the treasure rests. Originally the treasure was lodged at Dijon, but subsequently it was removed to Brussels. As against this point the Austrians will argue that, when the Low Countries passed to the Emperor Maximilian by his marriage with Mary of Burgundy at the end of the fifteenth century, the sovereignty of the Order of the Golden Fleece passed with them. When the question of ownership has been decided the Commission's work will not be finished. The question of the actual character of the treasure will remain. Belgium asserts that it comprises many objects of great value, while the Austrians declare that many of these have been dispersed in the course of centuries and that only an unimportant collection of robes remains. The Commission has solved some difficult problems, but we anticipate that none will give it more trouble than the settlement of the claim to the Golden Fleece.

What is a Book?

What is a book? Charles Lamb put certain printed matter into the class of "books that are not books"; but literature in general has been content with a distinction between good books and bad. "A good book," said Milton, "is the precious life-blood of a master spirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life." We can recall no corresponding definition of a bad book, although the badness of particular books has been analysed in merciless detail by critics throughout the ages. If any of the great authors or critics had been able to hit on a good, working definition of the word "book," he would have earned the infinite gratitude of the Australian Postal Service, which is sadly perplexed at the present time. The postage on books in Australia is fourpence a lb., and on "printed matter" eightpence. Every postmaster has been allowed to make his own distinction between the two. The result is confusion, from which, however, a few very strange regulations emerge. Books of joint authorship and books to which a second person has written a preface are charged as printed matter. Perhaps, the official who discourages prefaces has been soured by the study of Mr. Bernard Shaw. Grammars and arithmetics are classified as compilations and charged at the higher rate. This we hold to be a just decision, but we protest against the inclusion of annotated classics in the same category. One postmaster who insisted that the Bible was not a book, but printed matter, was overruled. We are not told whether he based his action on the existence of the translators' preface or whether, as a higher critic, he refused to accept the single authorship of Holy Writ. The situation has become impossible; the Postmaster-General is besieged with complaints; and the book trade is in revolt. If a definition of "book" continues to elude the official brains of Melbourne, the matter ought to be referred to the Imperial Cabinet.

The Drought.

Once or twice during the present week, when clouds gathered over the Dublin hills, a few optimists carried their umbrellas into town. The long drought grows longer, however, and a parched and distracted land keeps itself alive on the hope that rain and a political settlement will come quickly. A good downpour to-day would be an excellent omen for the success of the Mansion House Conference. Some rain has fallen in Scotland, but England and, indeed, a large part of the world, are in the same case as our own country. Fires are raging on the Yorkshire fells and people are dying of heat in Eastern Canada. Sir Frederick Moore tells us to-day that last month's rainfall, and that for the last six months, do not create low records for the North side of Dublin. It is a poor consolation. Those who remember vaguely—as weather usually is remembered—the greater drought of 1887 will be inclined to think that, if there was less rain at that time, there was also less heat and sunshine. We doubt whether Merrion square and the other city spaces ever have shown a more scorched and forlorn appearance than they show to-day; and whether our burned and cracking golf courses ever before upset so flagrantly the accepted mechanics of the game. At least a fortnight's hard and steady rain is required for the quenching of the soil's thirst and the restoring of the farmer's equilibrium. For selfish and unselfish reasons all must hope that it will come soon. Now is a critical time for the crops and August is the town-dweller's favourite month for holidays. It will be a real irony of fate if people who have sweltered at their desks through a brassy June and a torrid July find that Nature has chosen August for the tardy opening of her flood-gates.

THE DROUGHT IN IRELAND.

RAINFALL ASSOCIATION'S REPORT.

June has been one of the driest months on record throughout Ireland. Several stations had no rain at all, and only for a thunderstorm on the 26th almost the whole South would have been virtually without rain. At Limerick 1.88 inches fell in this thunderstorm. The heat was exceptional at times, and all vegetation is very parched, and crops suffering considerably from the drought. The barometer continued very high during the month. Total rainfall:—

PERIODS OF DROUGHT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—As numerous enquiries still reach me as to the amount of rainfall in June of this year and for the six months ending 30th June, I venture to send you the following table giving the record for the six driest periods in recent years as registered at Glasnevin:—

	Year	Ins.
Rainfall in month of June,	1889	0.04
" "	1921	0.13
" "	1887	0.27
" "	1914	1.07
" "	1896	1.47
" "	1911	1.65
Rainfall for six months ending 30th June,	1889	9.00
" " "	1921	8.74
" " "	1887	5.34
" " "	1914	8.46
" " "	1896	8.87
" " "	1911	8.57

It will be seen from the above that the rainfall for June, 1921, does not create a low record for the North side of Dublin, nor does the rainfall for six months ending 30th June, 1921. The most disastrous period of drought was in 1887, when in the first six months the rainfall only amounted to 5.34 ins.—Yours, etc.,

F. W. MOORE.

THE RAINFALL IN DUBLIN.

The Irish Registrar-General's return for the week ending Saturday, 2nd July, 1921, states that the rainfall registered for that period in the Dublin registration area was 0.08; in the City of Dublin 0.06; in Rathmines and Rathgar 0.05, and in Kingstown 0.07.

RAIN IN ENGLAND.

Rain fell in some places in the South and East of England during Wednesday night, there being three hours' rain in Huntingdonshire.

WASTING WATER.

A FORTY-SHILLINGS FINE.

In the Southern Police Court, Dublin, yesterday, before Sir Ernest Swifte, K.C., Denis Guiney, draper, 79 Talbot street, was charged by the Dublin Corporation with using the Vartry water to wash the windows and front of his establishment. Mr. T. F. Burke, for the Corporation, said that the defendant was entitled to a supply of water, but only for domestic purposes. He was, however, found using Vartry water to wash the shop front. This was illegal. In ordinary times not very much would be said about it, but the public should understand that water so used was not for domestic purposes within the meaning of the Act.

Patrick Hickey, waste water inspector, proved the offence on 28th June.

Defendant said that there must have been some mistake made in the matter, as he had given instructions that very little water should be used in the establishment. He believed that the quantity of water used was about two or three bottles a day. His assistants even did not wash their hands in the place.

Sir Ernest Swifte said that if the present dry weather continued, and the water was not conserved, there would be none, perhaps, in a short time. He imposed a fine of £2.

WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—The anti-cyclone is now centered off our south-western coasts, but shows a tendency to spread eastward again. Further local rain or showers may occur in the northern districts, but the anti-cyclone will prevent appreciable precipitation in the south.

Ireland, N.W. and N.E.—Wind south-westerly or westerly; fair to cloudy generally, but perhaps local showers; visibility mainly fair, local coast mist; warm.

Ireland, S.E. and S.W.—Wind light, northerly; mainly fair or fine; cloudy at times, visibility good; very warm.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, THURSDAY NIGHT.

It is certain that, whatever negotiations concerning Ireland may be taking place, secrecy is being most carefully guarded. Nobody concerned in them will say a word, and a vast amount of information appearing in the newspapers is nothing but intelligent speculation. It is, in fact, rather surprising that some of the stories related are allowed to appear; they are so palpably guesswork. This sort of thing is useful on occasions, but the issues at stake at the present moment are so grave that it is unfortunate that greater discretion is not employed.

Save for the announcement that General Smuts had an audience of the King this morning, there is no new development in the Irish situation. It is not expected now that General Smuts will attend the adjourned conference in Dublin to-morrow. Lord Midleton started to-day, bearing with him, it is supposed, the Cabinet's comments upon Mr. de Valera's observations. There is again talk, presuming that the preliminary negotiations are successful, that the London Conference will be held at Buckingham Palace, and the ex-Speaker, Mr. Lowther, is suggested as a possible chairman. There could be no more hopeful choice.

Owing, no doubt, to the pressure of other events, the proceedings at the Royal Literary Fund dinner, at which the King of the Belgians presided last night, are very briefly reported in to-day's papers. Not one of them gives the witty speech in which Lord Sumner proposed the toast of "Literature." Incidentally he recorded a piece of hitherto unwritten history regarding the Peace Conference. The "Big Four" were reported to be giving scant attention to the claims of Belgium. Thereupon King Albert flew from Brussels to Paris, and, by his personal influence, secured that the first hundred millions of reparations should be earmarked for his own country. "In language of the City," said Lord Sumner, "I think this may be called the most successful flutter on record."

The best news to-day is that a few drops of rain fell in the Thames valley and that there is a prospect of the drought at last breaking up. Quite apart from the loss to the farmers, this unseasonable dryness is having a bad effect all round. It increases the natural disinclination to work and so helps to delay the industrial revival. It frays our nerves, and makes tempers irritable. If the violent outburst of some of the younger Conservatives in the House last night were traced to its true cause, I dare say that it would be found to be due to physical discomfort and insufficient sleep.

To-day Mr. Devlin and Mr. O'Connor had private notice questions down concerning attacks by forces of the Crown, and Mr. Devlin made the utmost play with his story. When Mr. O'Connor came to put his question Colonel Craig asked the Speaker how it was that these questions were put by private notice when they were no more urgent than the odd forty or so Irish questions on the paper. The Speaker seemed rather surprised at the question, but admitted the justice of the assertion, though he pointed out that private notice questions were left to the discretion of the Chair. Both Mr. Devlin and Mr. O'Connor were taken aback and neither attempted to pursue the inquiries further.

The Prime Minister made a short appearance to answer a few questions addressed to him. He said, in reply to Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy and others, that he hoped to make a full and comprehensive statement regarding the Anglo-Japanese Treaty on Monday next, and, though pressed to give some information as to the course of the negotiations, he firmly refused. He stated that General Smuts visited Dublin on the invitation of Mr. de Valera. Asked if he had seen General Smuts before he left for Dublin, he shrugged his shoulders, and said that he was constantly seeing General Smuts. He added that the Dominion Premiers would not attend the conference to which the Sinn Fein leaders had been invited.

Lord Balfour of Burleigh used to be known by his intimates as "The British Workman." He owed the sobriquet partly to his massive frame, partly to his carelessness in dress, but chiefly to his capacity for unremitting toil. Never was there such a glutton for hard work. The list of committees and commissions on which he sat (very often as chairman) during his long and active life would fill a column. He was for many years Secretary for Scotland, and finally left Mr. Balfour's Government for conscience sake, because his chief would not definitely declare himself against Tariff Reform. In fact, he carried his economic views so far as to support a Radical Free Trader against a Unionist Tariff Reformer at a London election—a step which caused his expulsion from the Constitutional Club.

There was a lively passage of arms this evening in the course of the discussion on the Ministry of Mines Vote, which had been put down to enable members, if they so desired, to criticise the way in which the Government had dealt with the coal dispute. The note of discord was struck by Colonel Spender Clay, who complained that the Government had been unduly secret, and he protested against the ten million subsidy being voted without members being permitted to have a say in the matter. Mr. Gould attacked the Labour Party for encouraging under production, and he blamed the Government for not insisting upon a guarantee of production as a condition precedent to a subsidy.

It was after this that Lord Robert Cecil "went for" the Prime Minister. He began by quoting a speech made by Mr. Lloyd George prior to the end of control, and, when the Premier challenged its accuracy, he for a few moments declined to resume his seat whilst the right hon. gentleman explained what he really said. As soon as Lord Robert had concluded his speech the Prime Minister at once rose, and contradicted the assertion which had been made by the noble lord that, at a critical moment in the dispute, he had made an attack upon the workmen of the country. It was true he had criticised the Labour Party, or, as he called it, the Socialist Party, but he was surely within his right in criticising any party which was in Opposition.

Mr. Lloyd George disputed the idea that the monopoly of criticism belonged to the noble lord. What he did say was that the moderate men in front were dominated by the men behind them. That passage had been travestied by the noble lord. He made no attack whatever upon the working classes or upon the trade unions, and he called upon Lord Robert Cecil either to justify his accusation or to withdraw. At this there were cheers and loud cries of "Withdraw," but the noble lord remained motionless, and the debate was continued by Mr. Hartshorn, who said that, given the co-operation of the mine-owners, the miners would work hand in hand with them for the welfare of industry.

The one pleasing thing which the Chancellor of the Exchequer had to say was that everything pointed to a drop in the price of coal in the near future. As to the merits of the controversy, he had little to add to what the Premier had said, except to deny that decontrol was the cause of the stoppage. The demand for a national pool was the cause of all the trouble.

LIMERICK PRISONER'S CASE.

APPLICATION FOR HABEAS CORPUS.

MASTER OF THE ROLLS AND MILITARY COURTS.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

The application on behalf of John Joseph Egan, of Ennis, for a writ of habeas corpus was further considered yesterday by the Master of the Rolls. Egan is in military detention in Limerick, he having been tried by a military court on a charge of having been improperly in possession of ammunition, and sentenced to death, which sentence has not yet been confirmed by the proper authority. The case for the prisoner was that he had not been in possession of the ammunition at all, and that he was innocently riding a bicycle on the public road out of Ennis in May last when he was met by a lorry-full of soldiers, who charged him with having thrown from him over a fence a parcel which contained 97 rounds of revolver ammunition and 5 rounds of service ammunition. At the same time two other men were seen running away from the place where the parcel was found, and they, although fired upon, made their escape.

Mr. Conner, K.C., with whom were Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., and Mr. Lipsett (instructed by the Chief Crown Solicitor), for the military authorities, resumed his argument in support of the case for them, and against the application on behalf of the prisoner, which was based on the assumption that the military court which tried Egan was an illegal tribunal. Counsel referred to the use of the expression in the Restoration of Order Act—"Owing to the existence of a state of disorder in Ireland," which was not, he submitted, a stated of war or rebellion.

The Master of the Rolls said that the Restoration of Order Act was an Act which was intended to cover all crimes in Ireland. It was of much wider scope than the Defence of the Realm Act. The Act dealt with treason and treason-felony. That was not the kind of crime that was committed merely in a period of tumult or general disorder, so that the Restoration of Order Act must have pointed to something more than a state of disorder in the sense that Mr. Conner confined the expression to.

Mr. Conner said that there could be treason without war.

The Master of the Rolls—You say that the prisoner was carrying on war against the King?

Mr. Conner—Yes.

The Master of the Rolls—Why was he not charged with that?

Mr. Conner—That is exactly where your lordship has not jurisdiction to interfere.

The Master of the Rolls—It was quite open, then, to the military authorities to charge him with high treason.

Mr. Conner—Very likely.

The Master of the Rolls—If they preferred that charge against him there was no reason why they should not have proceeded to try him by courtmartial, as provided for under the Restoration of Order Act. Show me any military necessity for choosing one tribunal more than another.

Mr. Conner—It is not for me to show any military necessity, once you get a state of war.

The Master of the Rolls—Can you suggest any other reason for selecting a military court, rather than a courtmartial, than this—that the military court has power to inflict the death punishment, whereas the courtmartial has not.

Mr. Conner—No doubt many reasons might be suggested. In the great pressure that is on the military authorities it would be very inconvenient to carry out these proceedings in every case by courtmartial.

The Master of the Rolls—I cannot conceive why there should be any difficulty whatever in constituting a courtmartial, having regard to the fact that this crime was committed on a particular date, an that the accused was not tried for a considerable period afterwards.

Mr. Conner—That is not a matter at issue here.

AN IMPORTANT POINT.

The Master of the Rolls—It is a matter of very serious consideration. Another matter of serious consideration is—and it has been pressing on my mind all last night—that where a military court is selected in preference to a courtmartial, it is virtually a temptation to the military court that they are to inflict capital punishment, and no other, because the only reason for their selection is that the courtmartial has no power in a case merely of carrying arms to inflict it. I think that is an awful consideration, because the military court does not assume its duty with a free hand. Virtually it must know that it is called into existence for the purpose of awarding a certain punishment, and none other It is an awful consideration.

Mr. Conner said that that was all very well if there was any power to inquire into the proceedings of the military.

The Master of the Rolls—I think that any civil court in dealing with this case cannot leave that out of sight.

Mr. Conner said that any civil court that would take it into consideration would be taking something that was not in issue here or relevant to the matter.

The Master of the Rolls—At present I cannot say that it is irrelevant.

Mr. Lynch, K.C.—It was the very first line of my argument in the Allen case.

Mr. Conner said that the reason why it was irrelevant was that if there was a state of war there was no power in the civil court to inquire into the action of the military authorities; and, therefore, the question whether the military authority ought to take one proceeding or another did not arise. These so-called military courts were not subject to the rules of court, and their proceedings could not be inquired into.

Counsel said that five judges of the King's Bench were unanimous in their decision in Allen's case, and he mentioned particularly the dictum of Mr. Justice Dodd, for whose opinion on such matters he had great respect.

The Master of the Rolls—I must be impressed by the fact that five judges decided in a particular way, but I cannot be taken to be overwhelmed by it.

THE TRIAL OF WOLFE TONE.

Mr. Conner urged that the judgment of the King's Bench Court in the case of Allen ruled this, and that the Restoration of Order Act's provisions did not deprive the military authorities of the powers given to them under martial law. Counsel quoted several ancient authorities, among them the State trial of Wolfe Tone. The decision in that case was based on the fact that there was not a state of war in Dublin at that time. An Act of Parliament passed in 1799, dealing with the rebellion in Ireland, gave the military authority full power without having to prove, as at present, that a state of war existed.

The Master of the Rolls—Wolfe Tone's crime was that he was guilty of high treason in taking a commission from France at a time when France and England were at war.

Mr. Conner—But he was in Dublin, which was in a state of peace, and, therefore, the habeas corpus could run. The other question was whether he could be tried by courtmartial.

Counsel concluded by submitting that this Court had no jurisdiction to grant the order asked for.

COUNSEL AND THE ALLEN CASE.

Mr. Kennedy, K.C., with whom were Mr. Lynch, K.C., and Mr. Costello (instructed by Mr. J. B. Lynch), replying on behalf of the prisoner, quoted from Sir James Stephen on martial law, where he says that military officers were not justified in exercising cruel or excessive force after resistance was suppressed, or in trying and punishing an alleged offender when the ordinary Civil Courts were open. There was no such thing (said counsel) known to the constitutional law of putting military law in force in this Kingdom. He contended that, while the King's Courts were sitting, no other Courts had jurisdiction, and outside the provisions of the Restoration of Order Act they had no right to travel. The military had no power to legislate by proclamation. Mr. Conner seemed to think that the moment a proclamation was issued the Restoration of Order Act was suspended. Why, he asked, was this man not to be tried under the Restoration of Order Act, as he was entitled to be tried as an ordinary citizen. He was not charged that he was levying war, and it was not suggested that he was a member of the I.R.A., or that he was engaged in active warfare.

The Master of the Rolls—He was only charged with having been in possession of ammunition.

Mr. Kennedy—And it might have been thrown into his garden by some person, and he might have been getting rid of it, if he had it at all. Counsel, in conclusion, submitted that the prisoner was entitled to be tried in the Courts established by law for the trial of such offences, and, according to the ordinary rules of procedure and limitation as regards evidence. The limit of the martial law theory had been extended, not by any decision given in England, but, unfortunately, by a recent decision in Ireland. The judgment in Allen's case and shocked legal opinion in England, where it was described as a new orientation of the martial law theory. It had roused a staid English lawyer to publish that description of it.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

The Master of the Rolls reserved judgment. He said that he would make an order for the arrest of the prisoner's execution until judgment was delivered in the matter. He was satisfied, he said, that the military authorities would not execute a man pending judgment.

MR. ASQUITH AND THE LIBERAL PARTY.

The Press is authorised to deny a report published yesterday morning, to the effect that Mr. Asquith will very probably resign, at the end of the session, the leadership of the Liberal Party. "It was never less likely," said one who was in daily contact with the ex-Premier, "and at the moment he is working very hard indeed."

DEATH SENTENCES IN IRELAND.

POWERS OF A MILITARY COURT.

TEST CASE IN HOUSE OF LORDS.

JURISDICTION CHALLENGED.

In the House of Lords yesterday Viscount Cave and Lords Atkinson, Dunedin, Shaw and Sumner began the hearing of the appeal of Patrick Clifford and Michael O'Sullivan, of Mitchelstown, County Cork, who challenged the jurisdiction of a military court in Ireland to try civilian prisoners.

The appellants were sentenced to death on a charge of having been found in possession of firearms and ammunition at Mitchelstown in April of this year. Mr. Justice Powell refused an application for leave to issue a writ of prohibition directed to the military court and Sir Nevil Macready and General Strickland prohibiting them from proceeding with the trial and sentence. Mr. Justice Powell said that he was bound by a decision in the Irish King's Bench in the case of the King v. Allen, which was in substance to the effect that there being a state of war in Ireland the decision of military courts were not reviewable. The Irish Court of Appeal dismissed a subsequent appeal, holding that it was a criminal cause or matter, and that therefore no appeal lay. The case was now brought to the House of Lords.

Sir John Simon, K.C.; Mr. Michael Comyn, K.C.; Mr. J. Comyn, Mr. J. McCarthy, and Mr. O'Sullivan (instructed by Mr. Herbert J. Deane, London agent for Mr. J. G. Skinner and Son, Dublin) appeared for the appellants. The Crown was represented by Serjeant Henry Hanna, K.C.; Mr. E. S. Murphy, K.C., and Mr. L. E. Lipsett (instructed by the Treasury Solicitor, agent for the Crown Solicitor, Dublin).

Sir John Simon, K.C., contended that the appellants, being civilians, were not subject to the military court, and that the officers of the court did not purport to act under any commission from His Majesty to try prisoners, or under any statutory or common law authority, or as a courtmartial. They purported to act merely as officers, carrying out instructions from Major-General Strickland. If the action of the Executive were to be excused on the ground of necessity one had to see whether, indeed, the necessity existed, and whether legislation, specially addressed to the situation, did not exclude the possibility of the other mode. He submitted that the prerogative (if any) in time of war to try and sentence civilians according to the process of martial law had merged in the Defence of the Realm (Consolidation) Act, 1914, the Restoration of Order (Ireland) Act, 1920, and the Firearms Act, 1920. In time of war the Executive had certain powers which it did not enjoy in ordinary times.

AN EXAMINATION OF LIMITATIONS.

It would be necessary in this appeal to examine carefully what were the limitations to that rule, and his point was whether or not the court was open. If the court were open no affidavit by any General, however distinguished, could justify the use of arbitrary power. The test did not depend on the oath or judgment of any General. The test was that the Executive could not be heard to say that there was this abnormal and irregular power in their hands to deal with crime by this extra legal method if the court were open. The law of Ireland was that they could not get a foundation for this claim of the military to be judge and jury, if, in fact, the court were open to them. As a matter of fact, the Assizes and the courtmartial under the Restoration of Order Ireland Act were functioning whatever might be the length to which the Executive, outside the ordinary court of law could go. It could not go the length of justifying the assumption of judicial powers, and carrying through a trial with judgment and execution. Once the Executive took upon itself to make a new offence, to try a man for a new offence, and to call upon him to defend himself, and then in a judicial character to deal with him, it was not doing anything which could be justified by Executive necessity.

Lord Sumner—Then they could have done it by Jeddard justice.

Sir John Simon replied that the authorities here did not say they were doing a thing hot foot.

Lord Atkinson—You cannot complain that they did not observe the forms.

TRIAL BY OFFICERS.

Sir John Simon said that he did not, and he also wished to say that he was not suggesting that the officers did not try these two men fairly, as officers would be expected to do. But he did say that the authorities had entirely misconceived what were the narrow limits within which, even in times of crisis, the Executive could act. They had here the claim of a committee of officers, who in this case had no more jurisdiction than a committee of a club to sit down and say: We are a court.

Lord Sumner—Is it your doctrine that these are rebels, and that you can kill them there and then; that no one can call you to account, and that there is an end of the matter.

Sir John Simon said that while rebellion was going on, and civil war was raging, it still remained true that martial law, and any authority exercised under it, did not justify the award of punishment after trial. It was possible to deal with rebels who were opposing the forces of the Crown and shoot and kill them, but the whole proposition was that it was not law for the General Commanding in Ireland to issue a proclamation that, if a person were found guilty by his military court, he would substitute the punishment of death for the punishment which the law provided.

Dealing with the history of martial law, Sir John Simon quoted from statutes of Richard II. and Henry IV. to show the limitations of the jurisdiction of these courts. The jurisdiction which administered martial law was historically the jurisdiction which administered the law in the court of the constable or marshal, who were the leaders for the King's army. The true view of this tribunal was that it claimed to exercise a judicial function, but it was that judicial function which could be challenged.

The hearing was adjourned until to-day.

DUBLIN POLICE RETURNS.

INDICTABLE AND OTHER OFFENCES.

GREAT INCREASE IN TAXI-CABS.

Statistical tables of the Dublin Metropolitan Police for the year 1919 were issued yesterday as a White Paper.

The total number of indictable offences committed within the district during the year was 2,027, against 1,995 in 1918, being an increase of 32. They may be classified as follows:—Offences against the person, 84; against property with violence, 390; against property without violence, 1,383; malicious injuries to property, 67; forgery and offences against currency, 23; other offences, 80. The total number of persons dealt with summarily for non-indictable offences during the year was 15.542, against 17,105 in 1918, being a decrease of 1,563. The total number of persons made amenable for offences during the year was 16,261, against 18,051 in 1918.

INTOXICATING LIQUOR LAWS.

Each inspector and sergeant is required to visit specially licensed premises at uncertain hours during his patrol, for the purpose of detecting breaches of the licensing laws. These officers paid visits during the year to 13,356 publichouses, 2,145 to spirit grocers and beer dealers, making a total of 15,500 visits. 36 publicans and 7 spirit grocers were prosecuted during the year—total 43, as compared with 28 in 1918, being an increase of 15.

DRUNKENNESS.

The charges of drunkenness, not combined with any other offence, dealt with summarily, numbered 884, 394 males and 490 females, against 790, 403 males and 387 females, in 1918; and 1,047, 473 males and 574 females, in 1917.

PERSONS UNDER POLICE SUPERVISION.

Twenty persons were under police supervision in Dublin during the year. Of this number, two left for other districts in Ireland, three left Ireland; in three cases the supervision was remitted by His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, in six cases supervision expired, and six were under supervision in the district at the end of the year. The number of thieves and persons of known bad character at large within the police district in the month of October, 1919, was 24, against 24 in 1918.

LICENSED MOTOR VEHICLES.

Since the year 1909 the number of licensed motor vehicles of all classes has increased from 45 to 250, or over 455.5 per cent. The number of outside cars has decreased from 852 to 528, 38 per cent; the number of cabs has decreased from 633 to 412, 34.9 per cent, within the same period.

EXPENDITURE.

The gross expenditure on the Dublin Metropolitan Police establishment (i.e., police and police courts) in the financial year ended 31st March, 1919, was £243,450, of which the proportion paid out of moneys voted by Parliament was £181,592. A police tax is established by 1 Vic., Cap. 25, and 61 and 62 Vic., Cap. 37, Sec. 66, at 8d. in the £, which yielded in that year £35,369 from the city and £16,242 from the county (i.e., the full amount, less 5 per cent. paid to the Corporation and to the County Council for the collection of the tax, and also less the certified proportion of the former Collector-General's annuity).

AN IRISH RAILWAYS BILL.

Sir Eric Geddes writes in reply to Mr. Wm. Graham that control of the railways in Ireland, as of those in Great Britain, ceases on August 14th. It is proposed to introduce a short bill this session dealing with the claims of the Irish railways arising out of control.

CONYNGHAM DIVORCE BILL.

In the House of Commons yesterday the Conyngham Divorce Bill was read a second time.

IRISH QUESTIONS.

THE PROTECTION OF LIGHTHOUSES.

Lieutenant-Colonel Archer Shee asked the President of the Board of Trade, in the House of Commons yesterday, whether, with reference to the announcement recently made by the Admiralty with regard to the lights on the South-West coast of Ireland, he could state whether application had been made to the Admiralty and to the War Office for protection of these lighthouses; what had been the result of these applications respectively; how the raids upon these lighthouses were carried out; what was the strength of the raiding parties; what amount of fog signals was taken away; what was the distance of the Fastnet Lighthouse from the shore; by what means did the raiding party reach this lighthouse; and, in view of the grave danger to Atlantic shipping if these lights and fog signals were interfered with in any way, if he would make further representations to the Admiralty as regards those lighthouses which were off the shore, and to the War Office as regards those lighthouses which were on shore, to furnish the necessary protection against rebel raids.

Mr. Brown said that the Admiralty and the War Office had been approached in this matter, but neither department was able to provide permanent protection for lighthouses on the Irish coast. So far as lighthouses out at sea were concerned, however, His Majesty's ships would keep in touch as frequently as possible. As regards the second part of the question, the Fastnet Lighthouse, which was about six miles from the shore, was raided on June 20 by a party of men in two boats. They took away some of the explosives, also stores and binoculars. The Bull Rock Lighthouse, which was still farther out, was raided on the previous day, and explosives and stores were taken.

Lieutenant-Colonel Archer Shee asked could not further representations be made to the Admiralty as to the extreme importance of maintaining the fog signals on the Fastnet Lighthouse, especially as every ship arriving from America had to make that light, and, in view of the easy method in which it could be garrisoned, could not some steps be taken to maintain the fog signals.

Mr. Brown said that the Admiralty were fully aware of its importance, and he was sure that steps would be taken to see that it was adequately protected.

Sir H. Craik asked if the Admiralty had not referred it to the Irish authorities, who had repudiated their responsibility.

Mr. Brown said that further representations would be made to the Admiralty.

THE MURDER OF MAJOR SMYTH.

Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy asked whether a reward had been offered for the death or capture of the hon. member for South Cork; if so, whether he would state the sum of money offered; whether rewards had been offered for the death or capture of other leading Irishmen; what were the amounts; whether any rewards had been claimed or had been paid out; and on what vote were these sums to be found.

Mr. Brown said that the answers to the first and third parts of the question were in the negative. The second and fourth, therefore, did not arise. The only case in any way similar to that indicated in the question was a reward which was offered for the capture of Daniel Breen, who, there was strong grounds for believing, was the murderer of Major Smyth, D.S.O., M.C., and Captain White, D.S.O., at the house of Professor Carolan, Fernside, Drumcondra, on 11th October last year. The reward was offered in the case of this man solely on the ground that he was wanted for the specific crime of murder.

EVENTS AT KILDRESS.

Mr. Brown, replying to Mr. Devlin, said that he had made inquiries into the various allegations contained in his question, and was informed that a party of Crown forces, in four lorries and four motor cars, visited Kildress on the date mentioned, to search for arms, owing to the police having been fired at in the locality. A publichouse and a number of shops and houses were searched, but the allegation that the publichouse was raided for drink was denied. An old man was slightly wounded, but he had not yet been able to ascertain how he came by his injury. Further inquiries were being made with regard to the other allegations.

THE MURDER OF WOMEN.

Answering Viscount Curzon, the Solicitor-General for Ireland said that since 1st January last seven women had been murdered in Ireland, and three kidnapped by the forces of Sinn Fein. The latter were all still missing. In addition nine women had been wounded. These figures did not include women and children killed or injured during bomb attacks on police and military lorries in the streets of Dublin and Cork, and attacks on railway trains.

THE SHOOTING OF EX-SERVICEMEN.

Mr. T. W. Brown told Major Boyd Carpenter that the Court of Inquiry into the murder of Hugh Newman, an ex-soldier, of County Cavan, found a verdict of wilful murder against some unknown person or persons of the Irish Republican Army.

Lieut.-Colonel Ashley asked if ex-soldiers who had received threatening letters, and were in danger of assassination, were allowed to carry arms.

Mr. Brown said that he answered a question the previous day about police off duty being allowed to carry arms, and if the hon. and gallant gentleman put a question down with regard to ex-soldiers he would get the information.

Mr. Devlin—Is the right hon. gentleman aware that an ex-soldier, who had four brothers in the Army, was murdered in Belfast by the police, and no attempt ever made to bring the assassins to justice?

Mr. Brown—I have not heard of it.

BURNINGS AT BANDON.

Asked by Colonel Roundell whether his attention had been directed to the recent burning of the Allen Institute, Bandon, County Cork, occupied by the Y.M.C.A., the Solicitor-General said that the Institute was almost completely destroyed by fire in the early morning of 29th June. By the time that the fire was observed it was beyond control, and all that the police and military could do was to try and prevent it from spreading to the Presbyterian Church adjoining. In this they were successful. The Institute was built about 70 years ago, and was left by Mr. Allen to the Protestants of Bandon, but there were no restrictions made as to its use, and persons of all creeds and classes frequented it to read the papers and play billiards. The police had no doubt that this was an act of incendiarism, but there was at present no evidence as to the identity of the perpetrators. He was having inquiry made as to how many residences and buildings belonging to Protestants in this district had been destroyed by Sinn Fein last month.

STATE BALL AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

In honour of the King and Queen of the Belgians, Their Majesties gave a State ball at Buckingham Palace last night, the function being the first of its kind since pre-war days. Some 2,000 guests were present, and their brilliant uniforms, charming dresses, glittering Orders, and jewels provided a spectacle of great splendour. All the State rooms were thrown open, and all parts of the Palace were brilliantly illuminated. The King, escorting Queen Elisabeth, and King Albert, with Queen Mary, headed the Royal procession through the State apartments to the ballroom. After the Royal quadrille, with which the ball was opened, dancing was general, the members of the Royal party frequently joining in. After supper, at which some hundreds of distinguished guests were invited to join Their Majesties, dancing was resumed, and continued until the early hours.

DERRY PRESBYTERY AND SIR JOHN ROSS.

The Derry Presbytery last night, on the motion of the Rev. Dr. M'Granahan, seconded by the Rev. Dr. Thompson, adopted the following resolution:—"At this visitation by the Presbytery of Carlisle road Church, which was so long and faithfully served by the Rev. Dr. Ross, the Presbytery of Derry takes the opportunity of extending its warm congratulations to his eminent son, Sir John Ross, Bart., on his elevation to the Lord Chancellorship of Ireland, and prays that he may be long spared to discharge the duties of that office with that zeal and efficiency which have hitherto characterised his public life."

MR. DEVLIN ENTERTAINED.

Mr. Joseph Devlin, M.P., was entertained at dinner at the House of Commons last night by a number of his Parliamentary friends. Lord Henry Cavendish Bentinck took the chair, and those present included Mr. Clynes, Mr. Arthur Henderson, Sir Donald MacLean, Captain Wedgwood Benn, Mr. Newbould, and Mr. James O'Grady. The company also included representatives of the Irish Nationalist cause who sat in previous Parliaments—Mr. John Dillon, Mr. John O'Connor, and Mr. Scanlan. The chief toast was proposed by Lord Henry Cavendish Bentinck, and after Mr. Devlin's reply Mr. John Dillon addressed the gathering.

THE GAIETY THEATRE.

"THE LILY OF KILLARNEY."

The "Lily of Killarney" was repeated by the O'Mara Opera Company in the Gaiety Theatre last night, and again drew a good "house." The principal parts were filled by the same artists as on the previous occasion, and the performance was delightfully fresh and vigorous. Mr. Joseph O'Mara was Myles-na-Coppaleen, Miss Kathleen O'Dea was Eily O'Connor, Mr. John Olivers was Danny Mann, and Mr. Joseph Griffin was a genial Father Tom. Mr. Lyon Mackie played Hardress Cregan, and the other parts were all well filled.

This evening—"La Traviata."

SPECIAL EXTRA.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

FAVETE LINGUIS.

The Times, in a leading article, says:—To-day's meeting at Dublin of the representatives of Southern Unionism with the leaders of Sinn Fein will be even more momentous than that of Monday last. Hope, though still intermittent, has grown in the interval. There have been new and favourable omens, and most favourable of them all there has been the visit of General Smuts to Ireland. The South African statesman, to whom the Empire already owes so much, has intervened in this, the Empire's most difficult problem, with the grateful approval of this nation, and also with that of every reasonable Irishman. On his return to London he stated that, in his opinion, the Irish question is susceptible of solution if there is a better atmosphere in which "we all thought less of antipathies and more of human goodwill." That was the true meaning of the King's speech at Belfast, and certainly nothing has done more to stimulate the hope to which that speech gave birth than the fact that General Smuts has been to Dublin, has talked with the Sinn Fein leaders, and is apparently persisting in his good offices in the cause of settlement.

After referring to the speech of General Smuts on Wednesday, The Times proceeds:—Immense though the difficulties are, we cannot think General Smuts's confidence entirely misplaced. There can be no doubt of the sincerity of Ireland's desire to end the present conflict. The crowd which prayed outside the Dublin Mansion House while the Conference held its first Session within truly expressed the feelings of the Southern Irish people, and were the high hopes which Ireland plainly reposes in the Conference to be dashed, disappointment would be intense. In this country also the whole question of a settlement stands upon a new level. The King's Speech at Belfast revived understanding of the real dimensions and significance of the Irish situation. From this understanding a new spirit has arisen, and the Government need no longer fear that, if they seek the sanction of the British people for a measure of Irish self-government more generous than the present Act, it will be refused. To-day's Conference will take place in an atmosphere clearer by far than any that has prevailed since the war, and in circumstances fraught with a real hope. A great step towards peace has been taken, and, even should it fall short of the goal, the Irish problem cannot again relapse into the stagnant hopelessness of the past few months. If it is not actually upon the point of solution, it is, at least, upon the only road that leads thither.

IRISH PEACE EFFORTS.

The Parliamentary Correspondent of The Times writes to-day:—The outcome of the resumed conference in Dublin between Mr. de Valera and the representatives of Southern Irish Unionism is awaited with anxious—almost fearful—hope. With Lord Midleton, Sir Robert Woods, Sir Maurice Dockrell, and Mr. Andrew Jameson there will be to-day one or two others who were not present at the last interview. The indications—admittedly vague—which come from Government quarters are that Lord Midleton has returned to Ireland with an intimation that the lines of a settlement must be in harmony with the Act which has established a Parliament in Belfast. Without knowledge of the precise nature of the communication, it is idle to speculate as to what has been added to make it appear worth while for Mr. de Valera to accept the invitation to London. There is still an expectation in quarters that look for a happy result of the negotiations that Mr. de Valera will reply with a counter-proposal. One of the suggestions canvassed is that the exploring of the possibility of a settlement may be begun in a way less formal than by a conference of the British Government, the Northern Government, and the Sinn Fein leaders. It is suggested that, to begin with, there is scope for the services of an intermediary who might be able to clear away some of the initial difficulties. Men of goodwill look to to-day's conference to provide evidence that the will for a settlement is there, and will prevail. It is one of the regrettable facts of the week that the anticipated release of Lord Bandon has not been made.

SERMONS FROM DOWNING STREET.

More than one of the representatives of the Dominions referred disparagingly to the Press of this country in speeches delivered at the meeting on Tuesday, observes The Times, editorially. We view these rebukes with chastened patience, submitting only to these wrathful men from oversea that newspapers, even in London, are printed to be read, that human beings are erring creatures, and that—sad as it may be—many men and some women show an ineradicable preference in their newspaper reading for the trivial or the sensational over the portentous and solemn. It is sad, but it is true; and we must add that—human nature being much the same everywhere—it is as true in the Dominions as in London. Not that we disagree with the arguments of Mr. Hughes, Sir Thomas Smartt, and other Dominion representatives on Tuesday, adds The Times. But the making of a newspaper is special work, and they can hardly know the real difficulty of supplying day by day a flood of news about each of the Dominions and about India. The collection and publication of news from all parts of the world is work of no small difficulty. No London paper would claim that it has even approached perfection, but those who are responsible for it may reflect that, if their work were as little successful as the Dominion Prime Ministers have been in issuing to the Press timely reports of their own speeches during the present series of meetings in Downing street, they would have failed indeed.

MAHSUD ACTIVITIES.

BRITISH PATROLS ATTACKED.

BRITISH AND INDIAN CASUALTIES.

A delayed telegram from Simla, dated last Tuesday, says: The following official communiqué from the North West Frontier is issued here to-day:—A number of attacks are reported. A party consisting of one hundred Mahsuds attacked a telegraph repairing party near Kotkia, but was eventually driven off. Our casualties were eight Indians killed.

Another party attacked us at Ladha on the 23rd June, but was driven off after a sharp encounter, in which the Gurkhas and a company of the Queen's Royal Regiment took part. The enemy's line of retreat was heavily shelled by howitzers. The casualties were one British officer killed and one wounded, and one Gurkha officer and four men wounded.

BRITISH OFFENSIVE ACTION.

The Mahsud capital of Makin was shelled from Ladha and Prazha Camp from the 21st to the 25th June with good result and great moral effect. The inhabitants are now removing their families. A water party of the South Waziristan Militia was ambushed near Surkamar, in Tochi, on the 18th June, the casualties being four killed and four missing.

A patrol sent out from No. 12 tower on the Tochi front was fired on by the enemy, and lost three men killed and four wounded. The enemy retired when reliefs, accompanied by armoured cars, arrived.

In the Kurram, an unarmed party of the 28th Punjabis, who were exercising their mules on the morning of the 22nd June, were ambushed east of Thal. One Sepoy was killed and the remainder were carried off through difficult country, but were released on the following night, the raiders retaining the mules.

AMERICAN PRECAUTIONS IN MEXICO.

Reuter's New York Correspondent telegraphed yesterday:—The Mexico City Correspondent of the Associated Press telegraphs that the arrival of the United States warship Sacramento at the mouth of the Panuco River yesterday caused intense excitement in Tampico. The correspondent adds that it is rumoured in that port that two British vessels now in British Honduras waters have been ordered to Tampico.

COUNTY KERRY CIVILIANS COURTMARTIALLED.

JUDGE-ADVOCATE AND PEACE TALK.

The trial concluded yesterday at Cork by a military court of the four Killarney civilians—three O'Connors and Frank Morgan—who were charged with having rifles, revolvers, bombs, and equipment in their possession at Grenagh House on the 30th June. The case for the O'Connors, as put forward by counsel, was that Morgan, admittedly a rebel, and another brought the arms, etc., through the window of the O'Connors' house without their knowledge and consent.

"Morgan said—"Ireland is at war with England. I was captured on active service, and as a soldier of the Irish Republic I demand the treatment of a prisoner of war."

The Judge-Advocate, having summed up, said that there was talk of peace in the air, but it would not be amiss if he informed the court that any conclusion they came to and any sentence imposed would, on confirmation, be carried out.

Judgment was reserved.

PRINCE OF WALES'S TOUR.

WELCOME AT MANCHESTER.

HIS TRIBUTE TO THE CITY.

The Prince of Wales, says a Press Association telegram, spent yesterday mainly in Manchester. He had a wonderful reception. The scenes of the preceding two days were repeated, though on a greater scale. He travelled miles of streets of the great city, packed with people in all ranks of life, and to the accompaniment of a long-sustained volume of welcome, which never ceased for a moment. Children were assembled in Birch Fields Park, Platts Fields, All Saints Park, and Buile Hill Park. No fewer than 130,000 children had been marshalled in these open spaces. They were dressed in spick and span summer attire, drawn up in perfect order, and each carried either a red, white, or blue streamer. The Prince, standing in his motor, in the uniform of Colonel of the Welsh Guards, drove between the juveniles, who joyously waved their colours with the most picturesque effect, and raised shouts of shrilly exclamation which were almost deafening. His Royal Highness showed his evident pleasure at the extraordinary demonstration and kept constantly at the salute.

He visited the Manchester Cheetham Hospital School. Here the masters and students gave a vociferous greeting.

AN ADDRESS.

Then a move was made to the Town Hall. Albert square had never presented a more animated spectacle, with its vast concourse of sightseers, who roared out their greetings when the Prince arrived to receive the Corporation address. In the forefront of the crowd were ex-soldiers, with a banner bearing the inscription, "The British Legion welcomes its Patron." His Royal Highness stepped on to the temporary platform. He was surrounded by the civic dignitaries, and the bands in the square played "God Bless the Prince of Wales."

Responding to the address in a clear and firm voice, he said—You have referred to my recent overseas tours, during which I had the privilege of visiting a number of the Dominions, and I would like to say how pleased I was to find Lancashire men prospering in all the most distant parts of the Empire, working as Lancashire men know how to work, and adapting themselves easily to the changed conditions, but ever proud and mindful of the country that was their real home. The part played by Lancashire in the important movements which have changed the history of this country is proverbial, and in the great group of Lancastrian cities Manchester has ever been to the fore as a pioneer, and has ever deserved the praise of the old sixteenth century chronicler, who called her that "fairest, best-builded, quickest, and most populous city." It was to Manchester that the Irish peasants from the West and the merchants of the East first sent the raw materials which was to feed one of the greatest of English industries. It was the railway from Manchester to Liverpool that first convinced the people of this country of the tremendous possibilities of locomotion by rail, and Manchester, besides being always a helpful patron of music and the fine arts, is, I think, the only town in the United Kingdom which has given its name to a definite school of political thought. The Prince then offered a few words of welcome to the ex-Service men, whom he had been inspecting. I thank you very much, he said, for having come to see me here to-day, and for giving me such a good welcome. I am afraid a great many of you have had a very bad time, and are having a very bad time now. Well, I assure you I have your interests very very closely at heart. I am very proud of being the patron of the British Legion, and of the way you have welcomed me to-day. I hope better times are coming soon, and I wish you every possible success.

After a private luncheon with the Lord Mayor the Prince went through Salford, paid a visit to the works of Messrs. Vickers, and then attended the match that is being played between Lancashire and the Australians at Old Trafford. The players ceased the game for a time to join with the tremendous crowd of spectators in giving a great ovation to His Royal Highness.

Thence a move was made through the outskirts of Manchester to Eccles, and on to Knowsley.

RAILWAYMEN'S ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

At the annual conference of the National Union of Railwaymen at Newcastle-on-Tyne yesterday, the delegates discussed the circumstances which led to the cancelling of the strike which the Triple Alliance had proposed to call in sympathy with the miners. A resolution was moved that the conference should endorse the action of the Executive Committee in deciding, with the transport workers and locomotive engineers, to "call off" the threatened strike.

Mr. Thomas explained the situation on behalf of the Executive, and the delegates had before them the manifesto issued this week by Mr. Frank Hodges, in which, alluding to his speeches to members of the House of Commons and his statement that the miners were prepared to discuss any proposition as to wages, he said—"We could have had a splendid wage settlement next day, but we lost the tide. Everything goes to prove that we could have secured a better wage settlement than that we have got now." This statement by Mr. Hodges was regarded by many of the railwaymen's delegates as a revelation and a strong justification for the course adopted by the transport workers and railwaymen.

MISSED OPPORTUNITY.

The Executive members informed the delegates that Mr. Hodges' statement was not news to them, and that they were aware that the Miners' Executive were in a favourable position for securing a reasonable wage settlement when the decision was reached by a small majority to reject Mr. Lloyd George's invitation to a further conference. The fact was emphasised that three members of the Miners' Executive were absent when the vote was taken, and that Mr. Hodges had tendered his resignation, although this was eventually withdrawn. It was under those circumstances, the delegates were reminded, that the miners' partners in the Triple Alliance decided that it was impossible to proceed with a transport and railway strike.

By an overwhelming majority, the conference endorsed the action of the Executive in calling off the Triple Alliance strike.

The conference passed a resolution criticising the attitude of the Amalgamated Engineering Union regarding the railway shopmen's claims, and deciding that, failing a satisfactory settlement, the earliest opportunity should be taken to use the full force of the Railway Union organisation on behalf of the shopmen members. Mr. Thomas said that the railway companies had intimated that the new machinery to come into operation on the decontrol of the railways should include every worker in the railway service if the trade unions could agree amongst themselves.

MILITARY INQUIRY.

THE WAR ON EX-SOLDIERS.

John Donohoe, an ex-soldier, aged twenty years, of Ratoath, County Meath, was murdered by unknown men recently. The details of the crime were given at a military court of inquiry which was held in lieu of an inquest at Dunshaughlin. According to the evidence, there was a knock on the door of Donohoe's house in Ratoath on the night of 13th-14th June. One of the occupants got up and asked who was there. A voice replied "A friend; open the door." The door was opened, and a man carrying a revolver in his hand walked in. He was completely masked and was wearing a trench coat. After being told that John Donohoe was in bed the stranger ordered him to be called, and followed the person who had admitted him up to John Donohoe's bedroom. Donohoe was ordered to get up and follow the masked man. This he did, not being given time to dress properly. Ordering the person who had let him into the house to go back to bed, the masked man, accompanied by another man, who had remained standing by the garden gate, took John Donohoe away. About ten minutes after the men had gone one of them returned, and said that John Donohoe would be back all right in the morning. A few minutes after this three shots were heard. The body of the deceased man was found early next morning about fifty yards from the house. Two pools of blood were found at some distance from where the body was found.

Medical evidence showed that there were four bullet wounds in the body, one bullet having passed through the heart.

The Court found that John Donohoe died from bullet wounds inflicted by persons unknown, who are guilty of wilful murder.

The murdered man joined the 4th Dublin Fusiliers in 1915, served in the Irish Rebellion of 1916, and also in France, being twice wounded. After the armistice he was transferred to the Royal Field Artillery, and was demobilised in March of this year. He is not known to have had any enemies in the neighbourhood of Ratoath, or to have belonged to any political association.

EX-NAVAL OFFICER FINED.

A Military Court held in Limerick yesterday investigated charges preferred against Henry Brady, ex-lieutenant, R.N.R. He was charged with questioning a soldier regarding the movement of troops in Tarbert on June 9th, and with being improperly in possession of munitions. Evidence was given that the accused questioned a soldier respecting the name of the officer commanding the company, its strength, and destination. He told an officer that it was unnecessary to have residents indoors by ten o'clock. When his rooms were searched subsequently cartridges, airgun pellets, and powder horns were found.

The accused was acquitted on the first charge; fined £15 on the second charge.

THE NEAR EAST.

SOVIET HELP FOR KEMAL.

RUMOURS IN ATHENS.

Reuter's Correspondent in Athens telegraphed on Wednesday:—According to advices received here from Constantinople, the Angora Government has demanded the abdication of the Sultan, and His Majesty has replied that he would be ready to abdicate in favour of any member of the Imperial Family other than Prince Abdul Mejid, the legal heir, who belongs to the Nationalist Party.

Another report received here says that a declaration by Yusuf Kemal, Nationalist, Minister for Foreign Affairs, at a secret meeting of the Angora Assembly, is being circulated in the Kemalist Army in the form of a proclamation. This passage is reported to occur, inter alia, in the proclamation:—"If the Entente sends troops to help Greece, it will encounter troops of Soviet Russia alongside the Turks."

The inference drawn here from this document is that Bekir, Sami, and Yusuf Kemal have come to an agreement regarding Angora's relations with Moscow.

The Protecousa, the organ of M. Cournuris, refers to some reports in the foreign Press of a postponement of the Greek offensive which, says the newspaper, will take place, not when it may please the sightseers and the curious, but on the day fixed by the Hellenic General Staff.

RENEWED FIGHTING.

A Constantinople telegram, dated Wednesday, states:—To-day's official Kemalist communiqué says that the Greeks suffered severe losses on the Ismidt front. There were front guard actions on the Ushak front to-day, in which the Greeks were repulsed.

A Paris telegram, dated Wednesday, states:—A Constantinople message says that Greek troops who were landing at Karamursal were attacked by Turks and obliged to re-embark. It is stated the Greeks have withdrawn their headquarters from Brussa in fear of a sudden Turkish offensive.

KEMALISTS AND CONSTANTINOPLE.

The Petit Parisien states that never at any time has the news received in Paris indicated that the Kemalists intended to march on Constantinople. On the contrary, reliable information shows that the troops of Mustapha Kemal Pasha have not proceeded beyond the neutral zone fixed by the Allies.

BULGARIA AND ANGORA.

RAPPROCHEMENT DENIED.

ATTITUDE OF STRICT NEUTRALITY.

Reuter's Agency has received communication of the following telegram of yesterday's date from the Bulgarian Foreign Office in Sofia, giving an official denial of certain reports to the effect that (1) a Bulgarian Mission had been sent to Mustapha Kemal Pasha; (2) that relations had been established between the Bulgarian Soviet Government and Mustapha Kemal Pasha; (3) that a Bolshevik Mission had arrived at Varna, Bulgaria, and that certain Bulgarian statesmen had paid a visit to ex-King Ferdinand.

The telegram continues:—We are authorised to deny in the most formal and categorical manner all these entirely false statements, spread in order to discredit the Bulgarian Government in European public opinion, and with the Governments of the Allied Powers. We do not exclude, however, the possibility that certain Bulgarians, travelling as private individuals, may have crossed to Asia Minor from Constantinople. The Bulgarian Government is firmly resolved to maintain strict neutrality in the conflict between Greece and Turkey, and has never entrusted to any delegate whatsoever a mission to Angora such as the one alluded to.

In view of the critical position of Bulgarian nationals living in Russia under Soviet rule, the Bulgarian Government had the intention of sending a delegate there for the purpose of obtaining some alleviation of their distress, but, owing to the foregoing insinuations, the Bulgarian Government did not put this into execution.

The Bulgarian Government will lose no opportunity of proving its sincere intention of preserving a most strict neutrality in regard to the present conflict in the Near East.

BRITISH COMMANDER IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

FRENCH PRESS COMMENTS.

Reuter's Paris Correspondent telegraphed last night:—The evening newspapers state that the French Government has been advised by the British Government of the Departure for Angora of Lieutenant-General Sir Charles Harington, the British Commander-in-Chief at Constantinople. It is stated that the French Government has expressed its cordial approval of this step, adding that it has urged Bekir Sami Bey, representative of the Angora Government in Paris, to visit London.

The Temps, commenting on the step, says that General Harington has those personal qualities which should render him an excellent negotiator. Great Britain has considerable interests in the East, and it is perfectly natural that she should safeguard them by an agreement with the Turks.

The Temps also believes that the Greeks are consoling themselves for the recent Turkish successes by the hope that, if Constantinople is endangered, the Allies will be forced to take action. The newspaper adds that Great Britain is seeking an arrangement with the Turks, not a pretext to fight them.

BRITISH FORCES AT CONSTANTINOPLE.

QUESTIONS IN THE HOUSE.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Mr. T. Shaw asked the Leader of the House whether it was a fact that British warships had been instructed to proceed to Constantinople; whether there was any danger of hostilities, and whether the House would have an opportunity of discussing the matter before hostilities were entered upon.

Mr. Chamberlain—I informed the House early last month that the Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean was about to visit Constantinople with the Fleet in the ordinary course. No further instructions have been issued by the Admiralty. From the information in my possession I have no reason to anticipate hostilities.

Colonel J. Ward—Is the Admiralty to stay quiet while the Kemalists occupy Constantinople, and is this House to discuss the matter before action is taken?

Mr. Chamberlain—Certainly not. As far as my information goes the Kemalists have no intention of violating the neutral territory, but if the British or Allied forces are attacked by anyone, they will defend themselves without waiting for the results of discussion in this House. (Cheers.)

THE MEDIATION OFFER.

Mr. Lloyd George, replying to Lieutenant-Commander Kenworthy, said that the Greek reply to the recent Allied representations, which had just been received, was of a simply negative character, and did not, therefore, in itself call for immediate further action on the part of His Majesty's Government. While, for the moment, no further step seemed open to the Government to end or circumscribe hostilities, no opportunity of doing so would be overlooked or omitted.

ANGLO-JAPANESE ALLIANCE

Mr. Lloyd George, answering seven or eight questions in the Commons yesterday, said that he hoped soon to be in a position to make a statement on the question of the Anglo-Japanese Treaty; but premature declarations would interfere with the success of the negotiations now proceeding.

Replying to Lieut.-Commander Kenworthy, the Premier said that the question as to whether the House would have an opportunity of discussing the subject had better be put to him after he had made his statement on Monday. His statement would be of a very comprehensive character.

The Marquis Curzon of Kedleston received the Japanese, German, and American Ambassadors yesterday afternoon.

UPPER SILESIA.

GERMAN VOLUNTEERS' DANGER.

A Berlin telegram, dated yesterday, says:—Dr. Rosen, Foreign Minister, yesterday expressed to M. Charles Laurent, French Ambassador, the regret of the German Government at the recent incident at Beuthen, when the French troops were attacked by the German population, a French major being killed. M. Laurent pointed out to Dr. Rosen the serious danger involved by the presence of the Volunteer formations in Upper Silesia, and in the campaign of calumny carried on in the German Nationalist Press against France. Dr. Rosen replied that the German Government was taking the necessary measures to provide work for the Volunteers, and expressed once again his regret at the deplorable incidents which were constantly happening, and were hampering the efforts of the German Government to improve Franco-German relations.

CREWE WORKSHOPS ON FULL TIME.

The London and North-Western Railway Company issued last night a notice stating that the great railway shops at Crewe, which have been on a three-day week, will commence full time on Monday next. The notice affects about 12,000 men.

THE IRISH PEACE MOVEMENT.

TO-DAY'S DUBLIN CONFERENCE.

GENERAL SMUTS SEES THE KING.

CAUSE OF HIS RECENT VISIT.

Telegraphing from London yesterday, the Press Association says:—The King to-day received General Smuts and the Minister for War in audience.

Except in the Dublin area, which has been quiet during the week, the peace discussions in Ireland, it is stated, have had no perceptible effect in diminishing outrages throughout the country. The outlook, however, is still hopeful.

It is learned that the visit of General Smuts to Buckingham Palace was of an entirely informal character, and was made at the request of the King, who is taking a close interest in the progress of the Irish negotiations.

It was ascertained this evening that the General would not visit Dublin to take part in the resumed conference at the Mansion House to-morrow.

Sir James Craig also is remaining in London for some days.

THE TRUCE QUESTION.

In well-informed quarters in London yesterday it was stated that, while there is reason to anticipate something in the nature of a truce in the course of further negotiations, the question of a formal armistice is not in contemplation. The possibility of a tacit understanding between the Crown forces and Sinn Fein, which would result in a gradual suspension of all offensive measures, is largely favoured by those who are giving the matter close consideration. It is considered that any inadvertent breach of the terms of a properly constituted armistice would tend to hinder the course of the negotiations. By means of a mutual assurance, to be shared to the utmost extent by the representatives of either side, it is hoped ultimately to secure at least a suspension of hostilities which would have the effect of materially advancing the work of the peacemakers.

WHY GENERAL SMUTS CAME.

INVITED BY MR. DE VALERA.

STATEMENT BY THE PREMIER.

Mr. Lloyd George, replying to Major Kelly in the House of Commons yesterday, said that he understood that General Smuts went to Ireland on Tuesday on the invitation of Mr. de Valera. He did not know whether any other of the Prime Ministers intended to visit Ireland. They would not attend the conference to which he had invited the leaders of Sinn Fein and the Prime Minister of Ulster.

PROBLEM OF PRESENT CONFERENCE.

There will be resumed at the Dublin Mansion House to-day the task of establishing a definite preliminary to peace. The anxious, but half-informed, public, watching for thirteen days the exchanges and the comings and goings of important men, barely has the confidence to expect, but heartily hopes for, a clear advance on the path of settlement to-day. The general trust in the Mansion House consultants' endeavour to compose differences will most likely be repaid this evening by a statement of the broad lines of discussion or of the "certain agreements" officially reported on Monday.

In some quarters it is believed that an announcement of the results of deliberations to date will most certainly be made; in others it is thought that the various consultations of the week will have so cleared the air as to render another adjournment of the business of conference unnecessary. In such a case, certainly, public suspense will at least be at an end.

At this stage obviously it is impossible to know whether a new situation will arise, or whether Mr. de Valera's full answer to the Prime Minister's invitation may be immediately expected.

The Earl of Midleton, Sir Robert Woods, M.P.; Sir Maurice Dockrell, M.P., and Mr. Andrew Jameson, D.L., will attend at the Mansion House at 11 a.m. to resume the discussion with Mr. de Valera and Mr. Arthur Griffith.

MR. DE VALERA AND PEACE.

"NO LACK OF GOOD-WILL."

POSSIBLE AUTONOMY FOR ULSTER.

The Publicity Department of Dail Eireann yesterday issued the following:—

President de Valera has given the following interview to the representatives of the Chicago Tribune and New York Herald:—

How do you feel about the prospects of peace?

It all depends on whether the British Government really desire and have the will to seek a peaceful solution; that is, one based on right and justice. If they do, they will find no lack of good-will on the part of the Irish people or of their representatives.

America has heard much of an irreconcilable element. Does it exist?

I am not quite sure that I know what you mean. Some call the people of North-East Ulster "irreconcilables," and some apply it to our Republicans; but we must be careful not to allow ourselves to be led away by names or by the creations of the propagandist. We should keep a firm grip on the facts as they are. There are people with strong convictions who are ready to sacrifice their lives, and all they have, for these convictions. They thus stand the most searching test of the sincerity with which they hold them, and it is most unfair to characterise such devotion by such misleading names. As for Dail Eireann and my colleagues in the Ministry, we have never at any time had even slight differences either in point of view or in policy. We are all united and work together in the most complete harmony, basing our position and our actions on the sovereign will of the Irish people as ascertained and declared in repeated plebiscites.

Is there anything in the constitution of the Irish Republic which makes it impossible to present to the Irish people any proposition coming from the British Government with respect to some new political relationship between the peoples of the two islands?

No.

What measure of autonomy are you willing to grant to North-East Ulster?

Such autonomy as they themselves desire and is just.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY AND PRAYER.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, who presided over the Upper House of Convocation, said, at the opening of the sitting at Westminster yesterday, that he wished to draw particular attention to a very grave subject. The moment was one of extraordinarily acute difficulty and responsibility in regard to Ireland, and, in connection with the conferences or discussions which would be taking place during the ensuing twenty-four or forty-eight hours, it was almost impossible to exaggerate the need for the public mind to approach the subject calmly, with sympathy, and, above all, with prayers. He was quite sure their lordships would recognise the gravity of the situation and the importance of prayer being offered to Almighty God in reference to this crisis. (Applause.)

COLONEL CHRISTOPHER FORBES BELL.

Colonel Christopher Forbes Bell, V.D., a pioneer of the Volunteer movement, and founder of the Liverpool Scottish, died yesterday, aged 69.

THE IRISH CATTLE TRADE.

REMOVAL OF EXPORT RESTRICTIONS.

A communication from the Ministry of Agriculture in connection with the revoking of the Animals (Landing from Ireland) Orders was referred to yesterday at the meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board, Mr. G. Byrne, Chairman, presiding.

Mr. William Field said that the public and those interested in the live stock trade should recognise the fact that the Port and Docks Board and the Irish Cattle Traders' Association were instrumental in obtaining freedom of export for Irish live stock. The trade should not have been so severely handicapped as it was, and recent developments had proved that there were no cases of foot-and-mouth disease in Ireland for a long time.

The Crown Prince of Japan left Paris yesterday morning for Toulon, where he will embark to-day for Italy. Lord Hardinge, the British Ambassador, was at the station.

UNIVERSITIES IN CONFERENCE.

TRIBUTE TO LORD BALFOUR

COMMERCE AND THE CIVIL SERVICE.

UNIVERSITY FINANCE.

Writing last night from Oxford, the Press Association's Correspondent says:—The dominant note at the meeting of the Congress of Universities of the Empire, when they resumed this morning, was a keen sense of the loss and sorrow at the death of Lord Balfour of Burleigh. Lord Balfour was to have presided at the opening session to-day, and the news of his somewhat unexpected death came as a shock to the Congress. In some quarters it was even suggested that the conference should adjourn, but those who have been closely associated with Lord Balfour felt that it would be his wish that they should, as Sir Donald MacAlister said, set their hands to the work which had been put down, and carry it through.

The Congress, standing, passed a vote of condolence with Lord Balfour's family, and with the University of St. Andrews, of which his lordship was Chancellor.

TRAINING FOR COMMERCE.

The Congress immediately afterwards devoted its attention to the question of Universities and training for commerce, industry, and administration. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. C. Irvine, Vice-Chancellor and Principal of St. Andrews. He remarked that the Universities were striving to satisfy the highest aspirations of mankind, and to mend a broken world.

Sir Theodore Morison, Principal of Armstrong College, Newcastle-on-Tyne, made some interesting comments on the necessity for training men to fill the Civil Services overseas. He contended that for a civil servant the intellectual discipline of University education was essential. The war had enormously increased the difficulties of manning the Empire, and the problem which faced the country was how to obtain men of the type required in numbers sufficient to satisfy the demands of the public services overseas. He was convinced that the newer Universities could supply the Empire with civil servants as good as those who manned it in the past, upon the condition that they made good one deficiency. Our modern Universities were lacking in facilities for sports and athletics—more time for their clubs and societies, ampler opportunity for meeting and talking to one another, away from the dons and lecture rooms. I am satisfied, said Sir Theodore, that our Universities will in future draw a great deal of first-rate material from the ranks of Labour; but these men need, far more than boys from public schools, the advantages of a residential University.

MISSION OF THE UNIVERSITY.

Sir William Ashley, Professor of Commerce at the University of Birmingham, urged that the mission of the University to-day was to put, somehow, the University idea into the heads of that great majority of the commercial community which at present did not send its sons to the University at all. They would render immense service to the country if they could succeed in inducing them to send their sons to the University instead of taking them straight from school into the works or the counting-house. At the present stage he thought it a mistake in most cases for a University to give its degrees as the result of attendance at evening classes.

UNIVERSITY FINANCE.

Sir Robert Stout, Chancellor of the University of New Zealand, presided over the afternoon session, and although the topic for discussion bore the prosaic title of University finance, many useful and interesting observations were contributed by various speakers.

Sir Robert Stout spoke of the need for further education, pointing out the disorder and lack of progress which were found among illiterate people. Education was the most important thing in democracy, and he believed that the feeling among democracy was that it was the function and duty of the State more and more to take charge of education.

In these days, when certain interests cry out for nationalisation, said Alfred Ewing, Principal of the University of Edinburgh, it may be useful to say plainly that the Universities do not join in that cry. In their judgment, it would be disastrous if they were nationalised. They recognised that they had national function as the only centres within the State of the highest learning and research. That function would not be discharged aright unless their doors were open to all who were conspicuously fit to pursue the highest learning and research, no matter from what rank in life those persons might be drawn. There would be little to be said for Government grants were Universities merely resorts of the well-to-do. They were very far from being that. The Universities contended that it would defeat the purpose of their being were they brought in any serious sense under State control.

HONORARY DEGREES.

During the morning the honorary degree of D.C.L. was conferred upon Sir Robert Stout, Chancellor of the University of New Zealand; Sir Robert Falconer, President of the University of Toronto, and Sir Nilratan Sircab, Vice-Chancellor of Calcutta University.

TRIALS IN DERRY.

HIGHWAY ASSAULT CHARGE.

At a Field Genearl Courtmartial in Derry yesterday John Rutherford, aged 20 years, an ex-soldier, of Ballybofey, was charged with assault with intent to do bodily harm, common assault, and with having firearms not under effective military control.

Mr. James Boyle appeared for the accused man, who pleaded not guilty.

The prisoner was identified as one of three armed men who "held up" a woman in the avenue leading to Drumboe Castle at half-past eleven on the morning of the 13th June, and demanded money. They searched the woman's pockets, but found nothing. When they were leaving one of the men said that if she mentioned the affair to the military she would be shot the next time she was found outside the gate.

The defence was an alibi.

The finding of the Court will be promulgated.

GAELIC LEAGUER PROSECUTED.

Peter O'Donnelly, Dromore, Gaelic League organiser, was charged before the same Court with having seditious literature in his possession.

The evidence was that a civilian who saw the accused man hiding something in a hole in his garden informed the police, who searched the place, and found an envelope containing a number of documents, including an unsigned receipt for thirty copies of An t-Oglach; a letter dated the 10th May, purporting to emanate from the "Adjutant-General, I.R.A.," and a letter dated the 12th May, addressed to the "O.C., Dromore Battalion," purporting to emanate from the director of organisation.

The finding of the Court will be promulgated.

ATTEMPT TO BUY ARMS.

COURTMARTIAL SENTENCE.

Sentence of one year's imprisonment has been imposed in the case of a young man named Joseph Blee, living in the Ballybofey district, who was tried by a courtmartial in Derry last week on a charge of soliciting a soldier to sell rifles and ammunition.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

A LIQUOR CONTROL BILL.

The Lord Chancellor took his seat on the Woolsack at 4.15 o'clock yesterday.

The National Health Insurance Bill was brought from the Commons and read a first time.

The Bishop of Oxford moved the second reading of the Liquor (Popular Control) Bill. He first expressed the sense of the House at the great loss that they had incurred in the passing away of that wise counsellor and trusted friend, Lord Balfour of Burleigh. He introduced it in order to secure an opportunity for discussion and conference as to the underlying aim, and to show how the bill might be made to work. He trusted that they would be able to arrive at an agreed policy, and be able to produce an agreed measure. The underlying principle of the bill was that of local option establishing the principle of training the people and trusting them to decide for themselves. It also embodied the principle of disinterested management in the sense that any area could vote for State purchase and control of that area.

The Earl of Onslow said that the bill raised important new issues of a controversial nature, and the Government had not been able to form a considered opinion as to its practicability in the limited time at their disposal.

Lord Sumner said that a measure of this kind ought to be introduced by the Government in the House of Commons, but the present was not the time even for the highest and holiest cause to incur more national expenditure.

The Earl of Plymouth and Lord Chaplin urged the Bishop of Oxford not to press the second reading, and on the motion of the Archbishop of Canterbury the debate was adjourned, after Lord Milner had expressed a strong view that the bill ought to be discussed thoroughly during the present session and not dropped.

THE CONDITION OF INDIA.

The Earl of Lytton, replying to Lord Sydenham, assured the House that there was no justification whatever for the alarming and lurid statements that had appeared in certain newspapers, or for the gloomy picture which the noble lord had drawn as to the condition of India and the position of British people there.

The House rose at 7 o'clock.

PARLIAMENT.

COST OF THE MINERS' STRIKE.

THE GOVERNMENT'S RESPONSIBILITY.

The House of Commons went into Committee of Supply on the Civil Service Estimates yesterday. On a vote of £132,910 for the Mines Department of the Board of Trade,

Major Barnes raised the question of the coal stoppage. He said that it was estimated that the miners had lost fifty million pounds in wages as a result of the dispute, while it had cost the taxpayers twenty millions, apart from the ten million subsidy. The cost to the whole community through the general stoppage of industry and the depression in trade was estimated at 250 million pounds. He submitted that if the Government had adopted a different policy the stoppage might have been avoided, and this loss would not have been incurred. He did not say that no responsibility rested on the miners or the mine-owners, but he contended that the methods of the Government produced a situation which led to the stoppage, and afterwards they took no steps to ease the situation.

Colonel Spender Clay moved a reduction of the vote by £100 as a protest against the habit of secrecy of the Government, and the way in which the subsidy of ten millions was voted by the House last week.

Mr. Gould said that he was astonished that a settlement was not effected that guaranteed output as well as wages. Mine-owners were unable to procure orders. He was convinced from a study of the industrial and financial situation that the levy on capital which the Labour Party demanded was being rapidly brought about by the Government itself through settlements such as that effected in the coal trade. Capital was being absorbed in taxation, and there was a shortage of money for industrial purposes. Anyone who expected the coal trade to be in an economic position by September next was absolutely mad. The trade was losing orders, and there was no prospect of cheap coal.

LORD ROBERT CECIL.

Lord Robert Cecil said that he did not think that the last speaker had made any practical suggestions.

Mr. Gould—I suggested that output guarantees should have been inserted in the settlement.

Lord Robert Cecil said that he did not see how such guarantees could have been reenforced. Reviewing the history of the dispute, he referred to the speech made by the Prime Minister on the eve of the dispute, in which he said the Prime Minister identified the Labour leaders with the teachings of Karl Marx, and argued that it was no use taking notice of the moderate men because of the forces at work behind them.

Mr. Lloyd George complained that Lord Robert was putting a wrong construction on what he had said.

Lord Robert Cecil maintained that he was entitled to put his own construction on the Prime Minister's speech.

Mr. Lloyd George—I never made any statement about the Labour electorate—only about the Labour leaders, whom I declined to identify with the workers. He asked Lord Robert Cecil to quote the actual words that he used.

Lord Robert Cecil said that he had not the actual terms of the speech before him, and, on the Prime Minister rising again, he declined to give way, saying that if the Prime Minister assured him that he did not attack the whole working class he accepted that. What he did say was that it was useless to trust to the moderation of the leaders because the people behind them would drive them to extreme courses. (Labour cheers.) He submitted that such a speech, so far from helping a settlement, was likely to prevent a settlement, and to precipitate the crisis which ultimately occurred. (Hear, hear.) Such criticisms produced a great atmosphere of provocation, and were one of the causes which made it difficult to procure a settlement. He regretted that there was no provision in the final settlement for giving the workers some share in the responsibility for working the mines.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE.

Mr. Lloyd George said that he only intervened in the debate because of the statement made by Lord Robert Cecil, that on the eve of the coal dispute he made an attack on the workmen of this country. It was perfectly true that he criticised the Labour Party, or, as he called it, the Socialist Party, on that occasion; but, surely, he was within his right in criticising any party that was in opposition to the one with which he happened to be associated? What he did was to point out that the country must not be misled by the fact that those who were in the front of the Labour movement were essentially moderate men, because they were dominated by men behind who were not moderate, and that in the end it was the counsels of these men that prevailed. (Hear, hear.) He did not imagine at that moment that in a very short time his statement would be so completely verified. (Cheers.) Mr. Lloyd George then quoted a lengthy passage from his speech on the subject, and he also quoted from a recent speech by Mr. Frank Hodges, which, he maintained, bore out his contention, that it was the extremists who presented the difficulty with regard to peace. The only difference between the noble lord and himself was that he (Mr. Lloyd George) knew something about these things. (Ministerial cheers.) He warned the country in March, before the strike began, that it was not the responsible leaders of the men who counted, but that there were men behind who rushed them into foolish and violent courses against their better judgment, and that they were the real danger. Everything that had happened since had completely justified what he said. (Cheers.) He asked the noble lord to quote a single sentence in his speech that was an attack on the working men, or on the trade unions of the country. He criticised the theorists who were promulgating teories subversive of the whole prosperity of the country, for it was the men who were working behind who would force their counsels on the party. To say that that was an attack on the working men of the country was unfair—(hear, hear)—and he was entitled to ask the noble lord to either justify his statement by a single quotation, or to withdraw it. (Ministerial cheers, and cries of "Withdraw.")

MR. HARTSHORN.

Mr. Hartshorn said that the settlement was a bad one, but having accepted the agreement the miners would do their best to carry it out. (Hear, hear.) But he was absolutely appalled by the prospect in the Welsh coalfields on account of the attitude adopted by the coal-owners. The miners took the view that they must co-operate in the most whole-hearted manner with the coal-owners, and put the most into the industry, and get the most out of it. But the South Wales coal-owners, in a considerable number of cases, were imposing terms over and above what was contained in the settlement, and were calling upon tens of thousands of miners to surrender not only the reductions in wages called for under agreement, but customs, conditions, and rates which had grown up in the collieries during the past forty years. (Labour cheers.)

SIR ROBERT HORNE.

Sir Robert Horne, replying to the debate, said that for two months the Government's offer to aid a settlement by a grant of £10,000,000 was before the country, and during that time, as long as the prospect of a settlement was in jeopardy, they had no protests. It was only when people were safe to criticise that they heard this form of comment. The alternative would have been men gradually going back to work, and the industry taking a much longer time to re-start. When the men got back there would be no settlement, but only locally arranged terms, which might be ripped up at any particular moment, when any body of men thought they were not sufficient. Instead, we had an agreement to last eighteen months. Was not that worth paying something for? It must be remembered that the coal industry was in an entirely exceptional position, and that Government control dislocated the mining industry to an extent to which no other industry was affected. With regard to attacks by manufacturers on the grant in aid of the coal industry, he pointed out that manufacturers after the armistice were getting coal at prices which were far below the world's market price, and they made large profits. (Labour cheers.)

THE TEN MILLIONS.

The use of the £10,000,000 was practically stereotyped. It was to be used to make up the level of wages. There was no possibility of the money being used uneconomically. The Government announced that the subsidy was not to form a precedent either for renewal in the coal industry or to be extended to other industries. It had been made entirely in view of the exceptional circumstances existing. It was said that it was the decontrol of the coal industry on March 31st last that brought about the stoppage. The Government had complete proof that at whatever point of time decontrol was brought about there would have been a stoppage—whether in March, or June, or August—unless the demands of the miners were conceded. (Labour cries of "No.") It was true. The Government refused to concede a national pool, but neither would the country concede the pool on which the Miners' Federation insisted, to the exclusion of the discussion of the question of wages. It was tragic, but it appeared to be true, that this great stoppage which had convulsed the country and paralysed industry was caused through an internecine struggle on the question of a national pool.

The motion for reduction was negatived, and the vote was agreed to.

The House adjourned at 11.2.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

A meeting of the Imperial Conference was held at 10 Downing street yesterday morning. The official communiqué states:—"A discussion took place regarding the attitude of the British Empire towards European affairs."

POLICE SERGEANT SHOT DEAD

WHILE ON A HOLIDAY.

BODY FOUND ON THE ROADSIDE.

Our Correspondent, telegraphing from Ballina last night, says:—A shocking discovery was made at Carralavin, a small village midway between Ballina and Bonniconlon, this morning, when the dead body of Sergeant Foody, R.I.C., was found by a postman on his round. The body bore a number of bullet marks, and found the neck was a label bearing the inscription, "Revenge, for Dwyer and The Ragg."

Sergeant Foody, who was a native of the district, only arrived in Ballina yesterday on a few days' leave, and left the town in the evening to visit a farm that he had recently purchased near Bonniconlon. He was attached to the Co. Roscommon police force, but did duty in Tipperary some time ago, and was stationed at The Ragg when two brothers named Dwyer were shot under sensational circumstances.

The remains were removed to the police barracks here this evening. Two persons, who are stated to be relatives of the deceased man, have been taken into custody.

BRIDGE WRECKERS SURPRISED.

FIGHT WITH SPECIAL POLICEMEN.

Our Omagh Correspondent telegraphs:—A patrol of Ulster Special Constabulary on Thursday morning surprised a party of bridge-wreckers at work on a bridge at Fairy Water, on the road from Derry to Omagh. Fire was immediately opened by the police, when the wreckers made off, at the same time firing on the Specials. There was a lively interchange of shots, and, as the retreating party entered Rash Wood, the Specials sent information of the attack to Omagh, and reinforcements were hurried to the scene. Before their arrival the wreckers had fled. Meantime, a patrol of Specials at Mountjoy, attracted by the shooting, rushed to the spot, and found a man named Thomas Moran, Church street, Omagh, a tailor by trade, in Rash Wood, and placed him under arrest. He was taken to Omagh barrack. When they were taken by surprise at the bridge the wreckers left seven coats behind, and in the pocket of one of them was found a letter addressed to a man in Omagh. The police immediately went to this man's house, and placed him under arrest. They are making diligent search for the owners of the other six coats.

DROWNED IN THE BOYNE.

THE BODY IDENTIFIED.

Our Navan Correspondent, telegraphing yesterday, says:—The body of the man which was taken out of the River Boyne near Bective village yesterday, was identified to-day in the Trim Workhouse mortuary, where it was conveyed on Wednesday. The identification was made by a young man named William Smith, of Kilmessan. He identified the body as that of his brother, Thomas Smith, an ex-soldier. The deceased man, it appears, served in the 6th Leinster Regiment, and was wounded in the Dardanelles. He had been residing with his father and brothers in a cottage in Kilmessan since he left the Army, soon after the armistice. He went to Navan on Saturday, 25th June, to get his pension. It appears that the mails were raided on the night before, and Smith could not get his money. He was told to call again. He borrowed a bicycle from a neighbour and left Kilmessan on Sunday morning for Navan. He was seen on his return journey as far as Bective village. Here he remained, playing pitch and toss. He did not return home that night and was was never seen alive again. His brother identified him to-day by a mark on his finger and by the clothes and boots. He was unmarried, was aged about 40 years, and was about 5 feet 7½ inches in height. "He must have got a dreadful beating," his brother exclaimed when he saw the body. The deceased man was one of five brothers, all hard-working people, and, according to his brother's story, he was well liked by everybody. The place where the body was found is only three miles from the man's home. The suit of clothes he wore was a tailormade Dublin suit.

POLICE PATROL ATTACKED.

SHOTS IN A BELFAST STREET.

A party of policemen was proceeding along Kent street, in the Millfield district of Belfast, last night, when fire was opened upon them from the houses. The police returned the fire, and in the course of the exchange of shots Constable Patchell received a bullet wound in the hand, which is not, however, serious.

WOUNDED CONSTABLE DIES.

Constable Galvin, who was shot in the street in Belfast on Wednesday, succumbed to his injuries early this morning.

DEATH OF CONSTABLE BREWER.

Our Hospital Correspondent, writing yesterday, states that Constable Brewer, who was shot at and seriously wounded in Hospital on Tuesday evening, has died at Kilmallock military hospital. He was operated on during Wednesday morning, but no hopes could be entertained for his recovery.

SHOTS AT POLICE STATIONS.

About twenty shots were fired on Wednesday night at the Courthouse, occupied by the Auxiliary Division (L Company) at Mount Leader, Millstreet, Cork. The Auxiliaries replied vigorously and drove off the attackers, without suffering any casualties.

On Wednesday night Galbally police barrack, in the Bruff district of County Limerick, was fired at by rebels, who were concealed behind walls and hedges. The police replied to the fire and were uninjured. No damage was done to the barrack.

Emly Constabulary Barrack was attacked by about forty rebels on the 5th inst. After an hour's fight the rebels were beaten off. One constable, who was standing at the barrack gate, received a bullet wound in the arm. The wound is not serious.

A KING'S COUNTY AMBUSH.

Dublin Castle reports that a mixed party of police and military were ambushed at three o'clock on Wednesday at Raheen, two miles from Geashill, Portarlington, King's County. The Crown forces returned the fire of the raiders, who were armed with rifles, and who numbered altogether about twenty. There were no casualties to the Crown forces.

RAILWAY PASSENGER SEIZED BY RAIDERS.

The train running between Killarney and Tralee was "held up" yesterday morning at Ballybrack by armed men, who made a prisoner of a gentleman travelling in a first-class carriage and took away the mails.

INCENDIARY FIRES.

Official reports state that Lohort Castle, Cecilstown, eight miles from Mallow, County Cork, was completely destroyed by fire during the night of the 5th inst.

Our Kanturk Correspondent says that Lohort Castle was for many years the residence of Sir Timothy O'Brien. The Castle and demesne were purchased some years ago by Messrs. Eustace and Co., of Cork.

Springfield Castle, Newcastle West, County Limerick, the residence of Lord Muskerry, was burned to the ground this morning by a party of the I.R.A.

Shantonagh House and furniture, the property of Mr. B. Fitzherbert, of Carrickmacross, County Monaghan, were burned out yesterday morning by armed men, some of whom were disguised.

The houses of Thomas Hanley and Sarah Moran, in the Ballygar district of County Galway, were destroyed by fire yesterday by three armed men.

THE ARREST OF A CLARE PRIEST.

The following resolution was adopted on Wednesday by the clergymen in St Flannan's College, Ennis, assembled in annual retreat, protesting against the arrest of the President, Rev. W. O'Kennedy:—

"That we, the Bishop, members of the Cathedral Chapter, and parish priests of the Diocese of Killaloe, regard the entrance on the grounds and premises of St. Flannan's College by British military forces and the arrest of the distinguished President of the College, the Very Rev. William O'Kennedy during the annual retreat of the diocesan clergy, and while Holy Mass was being celebrated, as an uncalled for and shameful outrage on religious decency and good order; and that we protest against the arrest of Father O'Kennedy as a lamentable exhibition of arbitrary rule, and as little calculated to produce the atmosphere of good will so necessary for the success of present efforts to establish peace between England and this country."

THE KIDNAPPING OF MR. BRADY, R.M.

MR. O'CONNOR'S QUESTION.

Dublin Castle states that a telegram from the County Cork is to the effect that Mr. Brady, who was kidnapped at Ballinlesky, is a Resident Magistrate. It appears that eight men called at Mr. Brady's residence, and told him that they required him to identify some articles which had been stolen from his house some months ago. The men promised Mrs. Brady, who was present at the time, that Mr. Brady would be back next morning, and that he would be perfectly safe. He did not return.

QUESTION IN PARLIAMENT.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor asked the Solicitor-General for Ireland, in the House of Commons yesterday, whether it was a fact that Mr. Brady, R.M., Bantry, County Cork, was taken from his home on Monday evening by armed and disguised men, who drove away in a motor car to an unknown destination; whether Mr. Brady had only just returned from a long holiday abroad; whether he was ordered to take this holiday because his life might be in danger on account of the evidence given by him in connection with the murder of Canon Magner; whether he would state why Mr. Brady was recalled and sent back to this district.

Captain Craig asked was it not an infringement of the rights of members that such a question should be asked on private notice. If it was permissible to put it on private notice every one of the Irish questions answered that afternoon might equally well be asked on private notice.

The Speaker said that it was quite true that questions were sometimes tendered to him which might more properly be put on the paper. Questions of this kind should be limited to matters of special urgency.

Mr. Brown (Solicitor-General for Ireland) said that every effort had been made to ascertain the information sought for by the hon. member, but owing to the short time that had elapsed since notice of the question was given, no information had as yet come to hand. When it came he would let the hon. member know.

Mr. Devlin asked would the Solicitor-General make special inquiries into the reasons why Mr. Brady, who was warned by the authorities to leave Ireland and remain out of it, should, by the same authority, be sent back to precisely the same place, when the "Black and Tans" threatened to assassinate him if they caught him.

The Speaker—That question has already been asked.

DUBLIN COURTS-MARTIAL.

MOTOR CAR STOLEN IN CITY.

At a courtmartial in the North Dublin Union Barracks yesterday five young men, whose names were given as Patrick Doyle, Barnaculla, Woodside, Sandyford; Patrick Larkin, Carrickmines; Patrick Moore (otherwise Rover), Murray's Cottages, Blackrock; Bernard Short, Fitzgibbon street, Dublin; and William Keena, Brookfield terrace, Blackrock, were charged with robbery with aggravation, in that they at Dublin on 5th May, being armed with firearms, robbed a motor driver of a car the property of a city firm. There was an alternative charge of having received the car knowing it to have been stolen.

The case, as outlined by the Prosecutor, was to the effect that at about one o'clock on 5th May the driver of a touring car was going along Gardiner street when he was stopped by a man who was not one of the accused. The man got on the footboard, pointed a revolver at him, and said that he wanted the car. A second man also boarded the car and told the driver to drive to Blackrock. When Blackrock was reached the driver was told to slow down. The men in the car were apparently expecting to meet somebody in Blackrock, but as they did not see them the driver was told to drive on to Kill-o'-the-Grange, where there was a crowd of about fourteen men near the church. Some of them were armed with pistols. There the driver was told to get out, and the car was driven off by five men. Before he left, the driver was given a receipt to the effect that the car had been "commandeered by the I.R.A." Later the same afternoon a police patrol came across the motor car near the Scalp on the Dublin-Enniskerry road. The five accused were then in the car. They had got no motor permit, and as they were unable to explain themselves satisfactorily they were taken into custody.

The driver of the car then gave evidence bearing out the Prosecutor's description of the "holding up" of the car and the incidents at Blackrock and Kill-o'-the-Grange.

An officer of the Auxiliary police gave evidence of having met a motor car in which were five men on the Dublin-Enniskerry road. Keena, the driver, was asked for a permit, and as none was produced he was arrested. Witness took statements from the accused. Keena stated that he picked up the four men at Blackrock. Doyle said that he came over from England in February, and when he met the others on 5th May he went for a drive with them. Larkin said that he was also asked to go for a drive, and that he knew only one of the men. Moore said that he was asked by the others to go for a joy-ride.

Other police witnesses were also examined.

Four of the accused declined to make statements in their defence.

Bernard Short said that 5th May was a holiday, and he went to Blackrock to spend the day with Keena. They had dinner and went for a walk as far as Temple Hill, going round the Cabinteely and Bray road. When they had gone some distance they found the car abandoned on the roadside with some children in it. They told the accused that some men had left the car there. Keena was a motor engineer and started the car. They found that it was in perfect working order and decided to go for a day's motoring as there was seven gallons of pertol in the tank. They went towards Kill-o'-the-Grange. At the graveyard they met Moore and gave him a lift. About a mile and a half further on they picked up the other two men. They also gave Larkin a lift. The coat and cap were in the car when they found it.

The court closed, and when it re-opened the President announced that the accused had been found not guilty of the first charge.

The court then closed for consideration of sentence.

DUBLIN'S ARMED MEN.

At a Courtmartial at Kilmainham Courthouse yesterday a young man named J. O'Farrell, of 92 Lower Baggot street, Dublin, was charged with having been in possession of arms and ammunition at College Green on March 1st last.

The accused declined to recognise the Court, and did not cross-examine.

A witness stated that about nine o'clock on the evening of March 1st he was in charge of a patrol in College Green going in the direction of Grafton street, when a civilian was halted and told to put up his hands. The civilian did not do so, but rushed across the road in amongst a crowd and then back again. The patrol opened fire. Witness saw the man stumble and fall down. He identified the accused as that man. In his possession was found a nickel-plated revolver loaded in five chambers, and a short distance away a handbag containing a Webley revolver, an automatic pistol, and revolver ammunition was picked up. The wounded man was conveyed to King George V. Hospital by taxi.

A second witness said that he was on patrol duty in College Green on the 1st March, and heard one of the patrol shout "Stop that man." He looked around, and saw the accused running away. The accused was carrying a small handbag (produced). A volley of shots rang out, and the accused fell. Witness went up to him and noticed that he was wounded. The accused was searched, and a nickel-coated revolver was found on him. About two yards from him the handbag was picked up, and in it was a Webley revolver (produced). The accused was sent to King George V. Hospital under escort.

The accused, when asked had he any defence to make, said that he had not.

The Court closed, and judgment was reserved.

ALLEGED ILL-TREATMENT IN COUNTY GALWAY.

Our Galway Correspondent telegraphs:—Two nights after the burning of the Athenry pavilion, in which an incinerated corpse was found, Mr. Thomas B. Cleary, of Abbey row, Athenry, and his nineteen-year-old son, Michael J. Cleary, had a startling experience. After nightfall a score of armed men with blackened faces entered Mr. Cleary's house, and, taking him out, declared that it was probably one of his sons whose dead body had been found in the pavilion, and, if this was not so, that it was the men who were at his house on that day who had set fire to the pavilion. They threatened to shoot him, ill-treated him, and demanded that he should give them information. He declared that he knew nothing about the burning. Meanwhile, his son was taken up to the river near by, and Mr. Cleary was told that they were going to shoot him. Shots were fired, and the mother, who was in the house, collapsed. The son was also ill-treated and ducked in the millrace. Mr. Cleary had shots fired over his head. He was subsequently thrown into the stream, after which he was permitted to go back to his house. He found that it had been thoroughly searched. His wife, he adds, prayed for one of the raiders, who acted very kindly towards her and attended to her when she collapsed. This man subsequently went into the garden to search for her son, who was afraid to return, and brought him back to the house. He spoke with an English accent, said Mr. Cleary, and recognised the picture of the Sacred Heart. On the following day police officers called to the house, which is within a short distance of the barrack, to make inquiries regarding the affair. Mr. Cleary and his three sons were interned at Frongoch after the 1916 rebellion. His son, Thomas B. Cleary, is at present in Ballykinlar.

A FATAL FIRE.

TWO LIVES LOST.

MILITARY STORES BURNED AT NEWBRIDGE.

An official report issued yesterday states:—The premises of the Navy and Army Canteen Board at Newbridge, County Kildare, were burnt down at 3 o'clock this morning. The charred remains of Mrs. Doran, aged 34, and of her son, aged 14, were found in the débris.

Our Newbridge Correspondent, writing yesterday, says:—The people of Newbridge were shocked when they learnt that during the night there had been a fatal fire in the town, in which Mrs. Doran, wife of Mr. Doran, chauffeur, and Mr. Doran's little son, aged 14, had lost their lives. Early yesterday morning the Curragh Fire Brigade were called to a fire in the buildings of the Navy and Army Canteen Board, and remained there for the greater part of the day. It is stated that some noises were heard outside the residential quarters attached to the premises on the Curragh road. Soon afterwards the dwellinghouses and the stores were seen to be on fire. The occupants of the larger dwellinghouses were roused and got outside. There was not the slightest possibility of saving anything. The amount of stock in the building was very large, as stores for the Curragh Camp, Newbridge, and Kildare Barracks were stocked there.

Mr. Looney, resident representative of the Board, said that at about 3 o'clock in the morning he heard the noise of vehicles outside the house, but after a time they seemed to move away. I came down, he said, soon after to investigate, and when about to go out I heard an explosion in the direction of the stores, and in a moment the place was a mass of flames. I met poor Doran with a child in his arms. I then ran back and helped Mrs. Looney and Mrs. Revelle and the children, who were in the buildings. It was impossible, however, to reach Mrs. Doran and her step-son, who were enveloped in a mass of flames in the burning house adjoining. The apartments where they lived were over the stores.

Further inquiry showed that the poor woman threw her baby for safety to her husband, and then went back through the burning house to call the little boy, when the floor collapsed. The remains of herself and the boy were afterwards found in the débris.

The fire brigade from the Curragh Camp, as well as the brigade from the Newbridge Artillery Barracks, did everything possible to save the bruning buildings and stock, but there was no hope.

Mr. Downey, while attempting the rescue of his wife and son, was badly burned. Another son, who jumped through the window, was seriously injured.

It is stated that the place had been entered by some persons previous to the fire. A large quantity of petrol is always stored there, and it is said that this was seized. During the process of removal a quantity of the petrol was spilled about the floor. It is said that a person in the place, hearing the noise, went to investigate the cause, and unfortunately carried a lighted candle to the store, with the result that there was an immediate explosion.

"CURFEW" IN DUBLIN

CHANGED TO 11 O'CLOCK.

Military General Headquarters, Parkgate, Dublin, issued the following statement yesterday afternoon:—

The Competent Military Authority, Dublin, announces that from this evening, 8th July, inclusive, Curfew hours will be from 11 p.m. to 4 a.m.

THEATRE HOURS.

In consequence of the change in the "Curfew" hours, the Gaiety Theatre will begin its performance to-night at half-past seven o'clock, and conclude at ten o'clock.

The first performance in the Theatre Royal will take place this evening at half-past six o'clock, and the hour fixed for the second performance is twenty minutes past eight o'clock.

RAID ON A LAUNDRY.

THREE ARRESTS.

General Military Headquarters reports that on Wednesday night armed men entered the Metropolitan Laundry, Kilmainham, and collected the military laundry, apparently with a view to its removal or destruction. They were surprised, however, by a party of the troops, who effected the capture of three of the raiders, all of whom were armed.

BLACKROCK BANK ROBBED.

At three o'clock on Wednesday five armed men entered the Ulster Bank, in the Main street, Blackrock, held up the manager and clerks, and demanded the keys of the safe. The men said that the keys were in the police office. The men then dismantled the telephone and took £50 in notes, silver, and copper.

TELEGRAPH OFFICE DAMAGED.

On Wednesday afternoon five or six men entered the telegraph office at Inchicore Railway Works, held up the clerk, and dismantled and took away three telephones.

MAILS SEIZED AT SEAPOINT.

Armed men "held up" the 4 p.m. train from Bray yesterday evening at Seapoint Railway Station and took five or six mail bags from the guard's van.

RESULT OF BOMB-THROWING.

Two civilians were killed recently by fragments of bombs thrown at the Crown forces by unknown civilians. Their names are, Charles Mullen, of 62 Sandwith street, Dublin, aged 52 years; and William Gorman, aged 13 years, of 134 Townsend street, Dublin. The circumstances of these deaths were investigated at military Courts of inquiry, held in lieu of inquests, and the evidence given disclosed the following facts:—

On June 8th a number of the Royal Irish Constabulary were passing through Brunswick street in a lorry, when revolver fire was opened on them by some civilians standing in the adjacent alleyways. After the first burst of revolver fire several bombs were thrown, four bursting outside the lorry and one inside, this one wounding five of the occupants of the lorry. The police drove on, returning the fire with rifle shots. They had no bombs in their possession. Two military lorries arrived, and the soldiers helped to dress the wounded, amongst whom were Mr. Mullen and William Gorman, both of whom were shortly afterwards taken to hospital.

Medical evidence showed that Mr. Mullen was suffering from a penetrating wound in the abdomen. He died twenty minutes after admission, and a post-mortem examination revealed the presence of a piece of metal—a splinter of a bomb. Death was due to shock and hæmorrhage, caused by this wound.

William Gorman, in whose brain a bomb fragment had lodged, died some days later from meningitis and cerebral abscess, resulting from this wound.

The Courts found that Charles Mullen and William Gorman died from injuries caused by splinters of bombs thrown by persons unknown at a lorry containing Constabulary, and that such persons unknown are guilty of wilful murder.

LOCAL BILLS IN PARLIAMENT.

The Unopposed Committee of the House of Lords yesterday had before them a Bill to Confirm a Provisional Order granted by the Local Government Board for Ireland to the Urban District Council of Pembroke (County Dublin) authorising them to acquire compulsorily certain lands which they want for the purpose of providing a yard, premises, stables, stores and workshop, street improvements, and works. The land in question is a field in Bath avenue and Margaret place, belonging to the Dublin Corporation and the Earl of Pembroke, and some land belonging to the same owners, with an advertising station, in Bath avenue. The bill was passed for third reading.

THE BELFAST SHOOTING.

DETAINED MAN RELEASED.

Mr. John Lyle Brown, North Thomas street, Belfast, who was detained on Wednesday in connection with the shooting of two Belfast constables, was discharged yesterday evening. Three men are still detained by the police in connection with the affair, and the police are prosecuting inquiries.

SHOOTING WITH INTENT TO MURDER.

BELFAST CIVILIANS CHARGED.

Michael O'Neill and John Nolan, Moffett street, Belfast, were charged in the Belfast Police Court yesterday with having on 27th June fired with a revolver at Adam Young or other persons, with intent to kill or murder, or to cause grievous bodily harm.

The two prisoners were charged separately, and were returned for trial to the Assizes, being admitted to bail themselves in £50, and two sureties of £25 each.

STEAMER ASHORE IN BELFAST LOUGH.

RAN AGROUND DURING A FOG.

Early yesterday morning the American steamer, Eastern Sword, ran aground in a heavy fog at Kennedy's Point, Whitehead. The vessel, which was bound for Belfast from New Orleans with a large general cargo, is of 3,785 tons, and is owned by the United States Shipping Board. The steamer is in a safe position, firmly wedged between two lines of rocks, with the bow well on shore, and it is expected that at high tide it will be refloated by the aid of tugs.

BELFAST LINEN TRADE.

INCREASED EXPORT INQUIRY.

The following official report of the Belfast linen trade for the week ending 6th July has been issued:—In consequence of the small quantities of flax offered in the local markets prices were well maintained this week. The improved demand for yarns may cause prices to go higher, as farmers are not disposed to offer their flax for sale at the present prices. On the Continent there is no change to report, as very little flax is being marketed. There will be supplies of fresh retted flaxes in the course of a few weeks, which will increase the quantity of flax offered for sale, and may improve selection.

Yarns.—A better feeling is quite observable in the trade. Orders are becoming more numerous, and in some cases for fair quantities. The last monthly returns show that the stocks are somewhat reduced, whilst yarns invoiced and delivered are considerably in excess of production.

Weavers.—The improvement noted in last week's report continues, more business has been done, and the tone is much better. The drastic curtailment in production must sooner or later make itself felt in healthier conditions. Factories generally are closing down for the whole of next week, and in some cases, in addition, for the week following.

Merchants:—There are more inquiries for all classes of goods from the export markets, and while the volume of business actually placed is small, there is a distinctly better feeling. The home trade is quiet, and little can be expected till after the August holidays; and the amount of trade to be done will depend largely on the success of the Mid-Summer Sales.

LINEN WORKERS' WAGES TO BE REDUCED.

Yesterday the Belfast linen manufacturers decided to reduce the wages in the weaving factories by 20 per cent. from the 18th July. Many of the weaving factories and spinning mills have been closed since before Christmas, while some have been on half-time. The reduction of wages as from the 18th inst. does not necessarily mean a general resumption in the weaving factories from that date, but future working hours will depend on the state of the trade.

BELFAST-BUILT STEAMER RECONDITIONED.

BIG WHITE STAR LINER'S DEPARTURE.

The White Star liner Baltic, which arrived in Belfast in January last for reconditioning by her builders, Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Ltd., left Belfast yesterday to resume her sailings in the North Atlantic route. The Baltic, originally completed in 1904, is one of the largest steamers on this service, having accommodation for about 3,000 passengers. The dimensions of the vessel are:—Length, 725' 10"; breadth, 75'; depth, 49'.

CROSS-CHANNEL PASSENGER DROWNED.

When the London and North-Western Railway Company's steamer Arvonia was at a point between the Baily and Poolbeg lighthouses yesterday morning, on the inward run, the passengers were alarmed by a cry of "Man overboard." A man was seen struggling in the water. The ship's engines were reversed, and a passing fishing smack was hailed, but the man disappeared. The body was subsequently recovered by the crew of the fishing smack and taken aboard the Arvonia. In one of the pockets was found a passport for Halifax, Nova Scotia, bearing the name George Walker. It is stated that during the voyage the deceased man told a fellow-passenger that he was going to pay a visit to his wife and family in Limerick prior to departure for Canada. He seemed nervous and ill at ease.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL TEACHERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—You were good enough to publish our letter dated the 6th November, 1920, on the difference then existing between the Committee and the Teachers' Association. This difference lost the schools the whole of last session, and its continuance bids fair to lose this. The position then was that the Committee then in existence had agreed to reinstate, without advertisement, all existing teachers except Civil Servants, and teachers of trade classes not members of their trade unions.

The position now is that the new Committee claim the right to re-advertise all positions yearly, and have done it this year. They have not merely advertised all appointments; they have actually already made these appointments for the ensuing session, deliberately ignoring the previous protests and resolutions of the Teachers' Association and refusing to receive their deputation until after the final date for receiving applications. It is not too much to say that the Technical Instruction Committee is out to break the Teachers' Association and to reduce the teachers to a hopeless state of vassalage—holding their positions at the whim of a continually changing body.

Such conditions of service obtain in no technical school in Ireland or England. They have been condemned by the City Council. They are, quite clearly, against the interests of teachers and pupils. They will, if persisted in, first ruin technical education in Dublin; for no teacher who can secure work under fairer conditions will serve under these. They will later ruin technical education in Ireland, if other committees wake up to the possibilities of annual jobs. This new Committee appears, unfortunately, to be no longer under the control of the Dublin City Council, having agreed, contrary to the express veto of that body, to submit its books to the Local Government Board auditor, on pressure from the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction.

Is it possible that the Department of Technical Instruction does not realise the disastrous effects on technical education of the annual dismissal of its recognised teachers in the City of Dublin Technical Schools and the substitution therefor of new teachers—many of them, possibly, less qualified and less experienced—and the probability that this power of annual dismissal may be used as a precedent for similar wholesale dismissals of teachers throughout Ireland?—Yours, etc.,

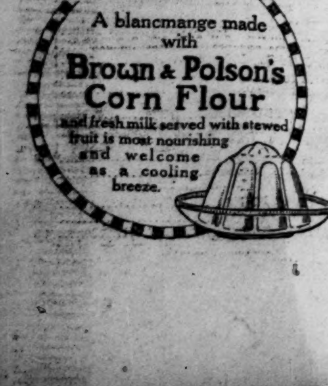

T. TOMLINSON, Chairman.
H. S. SKEFFINGTON, Acting Honorary Secretary, Dublin Technical Teachers' Association.

PROPOSED PRESENTATION TO SURGEON M'ARDLE.

A committee has been formed for the purpose of presenting Surgeon J. S. M'Ardle with his portrait in oils. It is proposed to entertain Surgeon M'Ardle at a dinner, to be given by his ex-pupils and friends, at which the presentation will be made. Dr. Reginald J. White, 23 Merrion square, and Captain J. S. Pike, of 15 St. Mary's road, Dublin, have consented to act as hon. secs.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS.—A young woman named Miss Nolan, of Castleisland, was drowned at Ballybunion on Monday. She was reading on the "Black Rocks," and was surrounded by the incoming tide. A postman, named Brady, employed at Cootehill Post Office, Co. Cavan, was drowned whilst bathing in a lake at Bellamont Forest, Cootehill, on Wednesday.

THE FIFTH DIVISION.

In his foreword to an interesting book Earl Haig writes: "This brief summary of a splendid tale of achievement gives but an inadequate idea of the courage and devotion displayed through four and a half years of war. A more detailed account will be found in the pages of this book; but the full story can only be understood by those who know from their own experience what it was that our troops were called upon to do, and the spirit in which they accomplished their task. It is with that knowledge, and in the sense of gratitude which springs from it, that I have written this foreword." This is a modest appreciation of a modest book, and we hope that the modesty of Lord Haig and of the authors themselves will not blind the reader to the merits of a very able piece of work.

In Dublin we have a special interest in this book, for on the fateful 5th of August, 1914, the mobilisation of the 5th Division at the Curragh and Dublin began. On the 10th the 5th Division embarked. Difficult days lay before it, but this Division covered itself with honour and glory. We can do little more than indicate the fields in which its members specially distinguished themselves. In the opening days the 5th Division was present at Mons, Le Cateau, at the crossing of the Marne and the Aisne, and in the first battles in Flanders. Then we have such wonderful feats as the Somme battle of 1916, the skilful and successful fighting about Falfemont Farm and Leuze Wood, the capture of Morval, the Arras contest, and Vimy ridge, where the Canadians won deathless fame. We are always specially drawn to the tale of the closing days of the war, and here we again find that the 5th Division occupied a place in the front rank. The authors recount the story of the pursuit of the retreating enemy east of the Sambre. The excellent maps and the fine illustrations enhance the value of the book.

RHYTHM IN EDUCATION.

The place of music in educational life is even yet hardly assured, though the potentialities of its influence on mind and character are beginning to be more definitely appreciated. Even in its cradle the child responds to the call of rhythm, and it seems strange that this medium for controlling growing forces has been so long ignored. If the development and training of the faculty of rhythm were to keep pace with bodily growth, the nervous abnormalities which are now so common among children soon would become things of a past age. We know that an elaborated rhythm runs through all art, science, and, indeed, nature, and we rely upon that copy of it which we term government to enable our social life to move in harmony. But the life and vitality of rhythm must not be confused with stereotyped order, and M. Jaques-Dalcroze is careful through these papers to establish the fundamental fact that the child must feel and be able to recognise music in order to be able to translate it in rhythmic beauty.

Some time ago, while lecturing in Dublin at the Theatre Royal, M. Jaques-Dalcroze demonstrated his method. In these essays he shows how it can be developed. The teaching of music in our schools fails to produce anything like adequate results—witness the decline of part-singing, the low standard of "popular" songs, and the paucity and mediocrity of musical composition. All are attributable to the lack of, or bad, early training. The education of the ear is sadly neglected, as musicians now freely acknowledge. M. Jaques-Dalcroze recognised this early in his career and evolved the method of "Eurhythmics" as a means to musical self-expression. It is easy to foresee some of its pitfalls and dangers, but they beset all art. The basic idea of "Eurhythmics" was visioned, if but dimly, by Plutarch; M. Jaques-Dalcroze presents it tentatively. It remains for our master-musicians to see that it gets fair trial and hearing.

A GALLANT OF LORRAINE.

We are glad to read the careful account which Mr. Noel Williams has compiled of a gallant of Lorraine—François, Seigneur de Bassompierre, Marquis d'Harouel, Maréchal de France. He flourished from 1579 to 1646. Mr. Noel Williams sketches the early associations of Bassompierre with Henry IV. and his share in the French monarch's campaign against Charles Emmanuel of Savoy. Bassompierre soon established his claim to be regarded as "the most amiable and elegant gentleman of the Court," and the author is justified in laying stress on this enviable position. He was idolised by the ladies in a greater degree than any gallant before or since his time, with the possible exception of the too celebrated Maréchal de Richelieu in the days of Louis XIV. He was liked and admired by the men, who looked upon him as "the glass of fashion and the mould of form." He was so great a favourite of the King that His Majesty grumbled whenever the Marquis absented himself from Court; and there seemed to be no rank or office, however high, to which he might not ultimately aspire. Though not wealthy, as wealth was accounted in those days at the Court of France, he was enabled, thanks to his extraordinarily good fortune at play, to vie with the greatest in luxury and extravagance. "It would have been well," writes Tallemant des Reaux, "if there had always been at the Court someone like him; he did the honours and received and entertained foreigners. I used to remark that he was at the Court what Bon Accueil was in the Romance of the Rose. People everywhere used to call a man a Bassompierre if he excelled in good looks and the elegance of his appearance and manners." Mr. Noel Williams had ample material for his book, and it is well worth reading.

TUBERCULOSIS.

We commend Dr. Hyslop Thomson's little book on tuberculosis to those who suffer from any of the forms of this disease. The book is intended as a guide to home treatment before and after sanatorium treatment, and there can be no doubt that, if the instructions herein given were followed faithfully, the disease in many cases could be arrested. Dr. Thomson has no faith in patent remedies. The large sums of money spent on useless nostrums are, as he says, worse than thrown away. The fact is that there is no royal and rapid road to a cure. The way is long and uphill and calls for patience and perseverance.

It is much to be desired that the public should realise the danger of the habit of spitting whether in the home or the street. The tubercle bacillus, which is a minute vegetable germ, is found in incredible numbers in the sputum of patients in whom the disease is active. There might be as many as five millions of these germs in a drop of sputum from a patient with advanced tuberculosis of the lungs. It is obvious, therefore, that the patient who spits or coughs into the open is a source of danger to the community. Yet, with reasonable precaution, there is little danger of infection as is shown by the records of sanatoria where it is virtually unknown for a doctor or nurse to contract the disease. Dr. Thomson insists on the importance of daily routine, and in two tables he sets forth a suggested routine for patients who are able to get up and go about. He fixes the hour of rising at 7.30 and of retiring at 9.30 or 10. At least fifteen minutes' rest is ordained after every meal and thirty minutes' rest before the evening meal. These is, of course, no saving charm in these figures or in this or that detail. The point of value, as the experience of all sanatoria and hydropathics proves, is the order and regularity introduced into the patient's life. We believe that in many cases physicians could render their patients no better service than to draw up a daily routine for them, covering every hour of the day and prescribing exactly what they should eat, and wear, and do. Few patients can be trusted with merely general instructions.

THE IMPERIAL PRESS CONFERENCE.

A descriptive account of the second Imperial Press Conference, held in August and September of last year in Canada, has been written by Mr. Robert Donald, LL.D., Chairman of the Empire Press Union. It is a complete record of the incidents of the re-union tour of 160 representative newspaper men of the Empire, and is also a review of Canada as the delegates saw it. The visitors had every opportunity and facility for seeing much of the Dominion's wonderful progress and estimating its future. The writer pays a tribute to the heartiness of the welcome and the almost overwhelming hospitality which were shown to the visitors. The book contains many portrait reproductions and illustrations of Canada's industrial and picturesque districts. It gives verbatim reports of the discussions at the official meetings in the Canadian Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, and of the speeches of statesmen and public men who addressed the delegates in various parts of the country. The conference was the gathering together of a great family in mutual understanding to further the interests of the Newspaper Press of the Empire.

A PRAYER-BOOK IN SHORTHAND.

Sir Isaac Pitman and Sons, Ltd., have just issued in shorthand the Roman Catholic prayer-book entitled "The Garden of the Soul." The shorthand, which includes all the latest improvements in the system, is beautifully printed. Among Roman Catholic students of Pitman's system the little volume should find a wide circulation.

RECENT FICTION.

It is in the spirit of youth and adventure that Radcliffe elects to exchange his luxurious quarters on board a magnificent yacht for a rough-and-tumble cruise in company with the quaintest pair that ever roamed the seas. The Tylers are ideal companions—for a cruise—and with them Radcliffe meets many strange piratical characters and lives through some thrilling moments. Satan Tyler is little better than a pirate himself, but he has a magnetic personality that colours all his actions with the glamour of romance. He has a sister, Jude, a wild tomboy of a girl, who, in spite of her coarse speech and primitive ways, has a fascination which Radcliffe is powerless to withstand. Radcliffe, of course, resolves to educate Jude in the ways of polite society and to turn her into a presentable wife, and we are glad that the curtain falls here. We prefer the retrospective charm of those glorious cruising days to the anticipation of the storms and tears which will greet Radcliffe when he sets to work on his Herculean task.

"Satan." By H. de Vere Stacpoole. Hutchinson. 8/6 net.

Miss Bowen's new collection of short stories illustrates admirably her wide range of imaginative and dramatic power. Some are set in modern times, in England, Italy, and Holland. Others give us a glimpse of the society world of the eighteenth century, while others again bring us back to the days when Christianity was first spreading into England. With a few bold strokes of her pen Miss Bowen can create an atmosphere and suggest a mood, and her stories, both sad and gay, are miniature works of art.

"The Pleasant Husband, and other Stories." By Marjorie Bowen. Hurst and Blackett. 8/6 net.

To the habitual novel-reader it will come as an unpleasant surprise that Cynthia Amory is, in truth, guilty of the theft of which the villain knows. He betrays her secret to the man who is about to marry her, and keeps the threat of further exposure dangling over her head when she finds a congenial niche for herself with a kindly, rich man and his silly daughter, in Egypt. Miss Rhodes assures us, however, that Cynthia is a worthy girl, and produces another suitor for her. The Egyptian setting is very prettily described.

"Under Desert Stars." By Kathlyn Rhodes. Hutchinson. 8/6 net.

This is a tale of the early French and English settlers among North American Indians, and an excellent tale of its kind. Mary, who has spent her early life among the Indians, and is discovered later to be a daughter of a French aristocrat, is a bonny maid. The story deals chiefly with her efforts to take her place with her soldier-lover, an honest young Englishman, and his family, in spite of the fact that both Indians and French are numbered among their enemies.

"Mog Megone." By May Wynne. Jarrolds. 7/6 net.

"The Toll of the Sands" is a highly-coloured romance of the Colorado desert, describing a gold rush into Death Valley and the fierce, naked passions which men display in the struggle for gold and for power. It abounds in thrilling incidents, and ends satisfactorily in the overthrow of the bad men.

SOUTH TIPPERARY ASSIZES.

LORD JUSTICE O'CONNOR'S BRIEF ADDRESS.

The Summer Assizes for South Tipperary were opened yesterday by Lord Justice O'Connor. Lord Justice Ronan presided in the Record Court.

Lord Justice O'Connor's address was very brief. He said that as the criminal affairs of the county were almost entirely in the hands of the military, there was only one case—a charge of arson—to be tried.

Only 21 out of 120 petty jurors answered.

On being informed that there were difficulties in the way of travelling, his lordship said that he would not fine any of the jurors under the circumstances. He hoped that they would all meet at the next Assizes under happier auspices.

There were only three cases in the Record Court. The whole business of the Assizes, which opened at 11 o'clock, was over at 12.15.

Armed forces were in and about the building, and the Union Jack was floated over the roof.

POLO.

ALL-IRELAND CLUB.

There was a large number of players in attendance at the A.I.P.C. yesterday, and, in all, about sixteen chukkars were played, the first hour being devoted to practice. In the first game, which was limited to four chukkars, Rovers beat Wanderers by a goal. In the evening Racers and Tigers, two fairly strong sides, contested six chukkars. Racers gave a capital display in every chukkar, and ran out easy winners by six goals to two. The ground was in a baked condition, and rather treacherous for ponies, and in the later game Major Godman had the bad luck to lose a pony, which broke a fetlock.

RACERS, 6; TIGERS, 2.

Both teams were well mounted. Tigers pressed at the outset, Captain Goulding playing the ball cleverly on both sides of the pony, but Mr. Johnston failed to hit through from an easy position. The chukkar had almost run out when, following good play on the part of Capt. Goulding and Mr. Johnston, Tigers obtained a goal. Capt. Watt equalised early in the second period. Capt. Wyndham Quin put Racers attacking at the opening of the next chukkar. Capt. Watt missed scoring by a narrow margin, but Capt. Wyndham Quin got on from the hit out, and scored a fine goal. This was followed by a goal from the stick of Mr. Daly, leaving Racers with a lead of two at the half-way stage. They had only just begun the fourth period when Racers got through again, and this was supplemented by the best goal of the match by Capt. Watt, who got in a straight shot from forty yards' range. In the fifth period the ball was taken from end to end several times without any change being made in the score. Tigers reduced their arrears in the first minute of the final chukkar, but the others replied per Major Godman, and rode off winners by four goals. Teams:—

Tigers—Mr. T. P. Tyrrell, Mr. Johnston, Capt. Lingard Goulding, and Mr. J. W. Shackleton (back).

Racers—Mr. J. Daly, Capt. S. A. Watt, Major Godman, and Capt. Wyndham Quin (back).

Umpire—Mr. Maxwell Arnott.

ROVERS, 3; WANDERERS, 2.

Hard going was the order in the opening chukkar. Rovers looked like scoring in the first minute, but Mr. W. V. Slocock cleared. Wanderers obtained the lead just before the change, but the others had slightly the better of the second chukkar, when they drew level, while goals by Mr. Moore and Mr. E. S. Slocock left Rovers with a decided advantage at the start of the last period. Wanderers, however, had nearly everything afterwards, but only got through once, Mr. W. V. Slocock being the scorer. Teams:—

Rovers—Mr. Moore, Mr. E. S. Slocock, Capt. M. King-French, Col. Browne Clayton (back).

Wanderers—Mr. Lithgow, Mr. C. Frith, Mr. McCormick, and Mr. W. V. Slocock (back).

Umpire—Mr. Waller.

There will be no play to-day.

SATURDAY'S PROGRAMME

The All-Ireland Club have arranged another capital programme for to-morrow at the Nine Acres, the chief item being an international trial match between the club and Capt. Wyndham Quin's team. After this match, which is timed for 4.30, an Irish team will be picked to play England at Hurlingham on 23rd inst. The fixtures for to-morrow are as follow:—

Practice, from 2.15 to 3.30; A.I.P.C. v. Co. Carlow, 3.45; A.I.P.C. v. Capt. Wyndham Quin's team, 4.30.

LANCASHIRE v. AUSTRALIANS.

INNINGS VICTORY OF AUSTRALIANS.

The Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Earl of Derby, spent an hour at Old Trafford yesterday afternoon as an interested spectator of the match between Lancashire and the Australian touring team, being accorded an enthusiastic welcome by 14,000 spectators. To summarise the play in a few words, Australia took a lead on the first innings of 192 runs, but they owed much to Lancashire's poor fielding, quite a dozen, more or less, expensive catches being dropped. At their second venture the county shaped much better, and reached a total of 184, but were defeated by an innings and 8 runs. Score:—

NORTHANTS v. YORKSHIRE.

This match at Northampton came to an abrupt termination yesterday, when Yorkshire won soon after four o'clock by an innings and 94 runs. The visitors had all the luck which was going, for not only did mistakes in the field materially assist them to raise 385 on Wednesday for six wickets, but rain overnight compelled them to apply the closure without resuming their innings. There had not been much rain, but it had done its work, and the wicket rendered considerable assistance to the Yorkshire bowlers, particularly at the pavilion end bowling towards which M'Auley and Rhodes did great execution, capturing 13 wickets for 72 runs. At one period in the home second innings M'Auley had taken 5 wickets in six overs for 13 runs. The state of the wicket to some extent excuses the very moderate shows by the home batsmen, who were twice disposed of in just over three and a half hours for an aggregate of 189. These innings were quite one man affairs, for in the first Haywood practically monopolised the scoring, being in possession one hundred minutes for 47, but he was lucky, being missed at the wicket when 2. Woolley filled the chief role in the second venture, resisting the bowling for an hour and a half for 51. He gave no chance, and hit seven 4's, being first in and ninth out. Score:—

HAMPSHIRE v. SUSSEX.

When Hampshire resumed their first innings against Sussex at Portsmouth yesterday Mead, whose overnight score read 155, only added one run, the left-hander being bowled by Tate with the fifth ball of the second over. Drutton, in partnership with Kennedy, was responsible for 18 runs, Kennedy being caught by Malden at square leg as the result of a trap set for him by Jupp. Newman followed, but was bowled without scoring, Jupp thus claiming two wickets in a maiden over. Six wickets fell in the morning for 43 runs in an hour. With Hampshire's score at 298, Sussex were 210 runs behind on the first innings. On Sussex's second visit to the wicket Jupp was first to face Kennedy's bowling, but he did not stay long, and the only stand made for the side was by Gilligan and Stannard, who made 23 in ten minutes. The visitors were all out for 110, Hampshire winning by an innings and 100 runs. Score:—

	1st Inns.	2nd Inns.
Sussex	88	110

BRITISH-AMERICAN CUP.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

The following fourteen entries have so far been received for the trial races to select four boats to compete for the British-American Cup:—

Boat.	Owner.	Designer.
Aurora	Mr. T. C. Glen Coats.	Glen Coats.
Alarm	R. Thames Y.C.	Hart.
Baccara	Mr. A. D. Grigg.	Grigg.
Caryl	Mr. F. Robertson	Fife.
Coila	Mr. F. J. Stephen	Stephen.
Friesia	Messrs. Maudslay and Westray	Fife.
Flya	Mr. E. S. Parker	Fife.
Jean	Hon. Sir J. Ward	Nicholson.
Margaret	Viscount Birkenhead	Giles.
Polly	Mr. B. J. Gould	Fife.
Victoria	Mr. W. P. Burton and Sir Godfrey Collins.	Mylne.
Whimbrel	Mr. G. E. Penny	Giles.
—	Mr. F. A. Richards	Mylne.
Lanka II.	Mr. J. A. McCallum	—

Built at Lymington, Baccara and Alarm were the first two boats to appear on the Solent, but gradually the "field" has swollen, though some of the Scotch boats are still in the North. Up to date the most constant competitors have been Baccara, Alarm, Friesia, Jean, Polly, and Margaret, which were joined on Saturday last by the Victoria, and on Wednesday, July 6th, by the Maid Marion, built by Fife for an American gentleman to act as a trial boat for the American boats. There was a good breeze at Lee, on the Solent, and Friesia won the cup presented by Mr. Charles Nicholson by 1 min. and 10 secs., Polly being second, and Jean third. The winner was steered by an Irish yachtsman, Major J. D. Barry, who is to steer Sir William Burton's Victoria at Ryde in the next match. This latter boat, with her owner (of Shamrock renown) at the helm, got third on Monday last at Hythe, and would seem to be at her best in light weather.

It is difficult to form an opinion yet of the capabilities, as the sailing has been so in-and-out, and as the sail area varies up to nearly 100 feet, the weather conditions on some boats will have considerable effect. The four American vessels are expected to arrive from New York this week. They are:—

No. 1. The Genie. Owner—Mr. Payne. Designer—Herreshoff, jun.

No. 2. The Montauk. Owners—Messrs. Aldrich and Stewart. Designer—John Gardner.

No. 3. The Grebe. Owner—Mr. Saltonstall. Designer—John Gardner.

No. 4. The Sheila B. Owner—Commodore Hammond. Designer—Burgess.

These boats are to be disembarked if possible at Stokes Bay, and taken to Camper Nicholson's to be fitted out.

The greatest interest is being taken in all the competitions, and the fleet of boats present a very attractive appearance, all so far being Marconi-rigged like Myria.

AMERICAN YACHTS FOR COWES.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL.)

NEW YORK, JUNE 18.

The four American challenging yachts, which are to compete for the new British-American Cup in races against English yachts of the same rating at Cowes, in August, will be shipped for England on the steamship Francesca. The Francesca will put into Cowes roadstead, where the little boats, which are to be carried in cradles on deck, will be put aboard lighters. Two of the quartet are from designs by William Gardner—the Grebe, built by Nevins, and Montauk, which was turned out by Wood. Sheila, the property of a syndicate, headed by Rear-Commodore Paul Hammond, was designed by Starling Burgess and Francis Herreshoff, and built by Herreshoff. The fourth boat is Jeanie, which was designed and built by Starling Burgess, and is owned by him in partnership with Vice-Commodore Frank Paine. Grebe is the property of a syndicate composed of John L. Saltonstall, R. de B. Boardman, and I. Townsend Irvin. W. A. W. Stewart and W. W. Aldrich own Montauk.

The yachts will all fly the flag of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club in their races in the Solent. The new cup, which is to become the property of the winner, is a copy of the Ashburnham Cup, made by Paul Lemarie, the famous London silversmith of the eighteenth century, and presented to Clare College, Cambridge, by the Earl of Ashburnham, in 1744.

THE WATER WAGS

Just before the start of Wednesday's race (for special prize presented by Mr. J. B. Boyd) there was barely an air stirring in harbour. Suddenly a breeze sprung up out of the westward of good strength and with a tendency to veer to north. There were seven boats out, and they were given the starboard course. At the start at 6.45 p.m. Wendy and Vela suffered recalls, Mollie leading away, with Blue Bird next; then Coquette, Tomboy, Phyllis, and, lastly, Vela and Wendy. The race opening with a beat, two boats were out of it early, Phyllis through her mainsheet carrying away, and Blue Bird through a foul when on the wrong tack with Coquette. Mollie at the close of the first round led Coquette by 26 secs. Tomboy was third, then Wendy and Vela. At the end of the next round Mollie led Coquette by 36 secs. Tomboy was still third, while Vela was now fourth. The finish was:—

	H.	M.	S.
Mollie (special prize)—Mr. A. E. Snow (5 mins.)	7	26	25
Coquette (3rd Club)—Mr. G. H. Jones (scratch)	7	26	58
Tomboy (2nd Club)—Messrs. Barrett and Donnelly (1 min.)	7	27	42
Vela (1st Club)—Messrs. Irwin and Geoghegan (4 mins.)	7	30	16
Wendy—Mr. E. H. Walpole (5 mins.)	7	33	7

Blue Bird and Phyllis gave up.

Mr. H. R. Newland was officer of the day.

PORTADOWN REGATTA.

The Northern clubs turned up in force yesterday at the Portadown Regatta, and, consequently, a good day's racing was enjoyed under splendid summer conditions. A big programme was opened by the Maiden Fours, which went ultimately to Dundalk, who thus repeated their Boyne success. Drogheda's form also held true in the under-age event, in which the home crew came through their heat against Derry, and disposed of Drogheda in the final. Belfast Commercial proved too good for Portadown in the Harbinson Cup, as did Bann in the Junior Eights. Details:—

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

The transfer books of the Munster and Leinster Bank will be closed from 9th to 23rd July, both days inclusive.

The annual statistics of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board show that for the twelve months just ended the vessels entering the port numbered 21,203, an increase of 4,088 over the previous year, but the tonnage was 708,247 lower at 15,813,126. The rates received on vessels and rating and dues on goods totalled £2,571,512, a decline of £69,357.

The monthly investment index figures of the British, Foreign, and Colonial Corporation, Ltd., show that, after making the necessary adjustments for bonus distributions, new issue of capital, etc., 100 standard investment securities, of an aggregate value on 31st December, 1918, of £2,991,000,000, and on 31st December, 1920, of £2,615,000,000, had a market value on 30th June, 1921, of £2,712,000,000, a decrease of 9.3 per cent. on the quotations on 31st December, 1918, but an increase of £10,000,000, or 0.32 per cent. on the quotations on 31st May, 1921. The return adds that the variations in the price movements during June show an upward trend in four sections, and a downward movement in one (the Speculative). The rises appear to be attributable to the reduction in the Bank rate and to the cessation of the coal and other strikes, the former affecting the two higher groups of stocks which reflect the price of money, and the latter cause bringing about a moderate but sharp recovery in the better class of industrial ordinaries. The purely speculative class of shares is still, as a group, neglected.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

THE BISLEY MEETING.

PUBLIC SCHOOLBOYS' GOOD SHOOTING.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM.)

BISLEY, THURSDAY.

The National Rifle Association meeting opened at Bisley to-day under favourable auspices. All concerned in the success of the meeting hope that the fine weather will continue, and that the public will be interested enough to come down to the common in large numbers to witness the many attractive events which have been arranged. The day was fine and warm, the barometer remaining steady, and the few clouds overhead gave a hint that the drought may break, but the competitors hope, if it does, that the rain will fall at night. They have memories of wretched weather during the first week of the meeting last year. The light was rather trying when a start was made to-day, but later it was not so glaring, and conditions became favourable for accurate shooting.

The boys from the public schools had the privilege of giving the meeting a send-off, and they made the best of it by making some good shooting in the Gale and Polden competition, which afforded them the opportunity of getting excellent practice for the competition to-morrow for the Ashburton Shield. One of the most attractive and picturesque events of the meeting, Public School Day is, of course, a big social event, and there should be an atmosphere of Ascot about the common to-morrow if the boys' relatives and friends put in their desired appearance. Ten shots are fired at each distance of 200 and 500 yards in the Gale and Polden shoot, which continues to-morrow. After tea this evening the boys had an opportunity of testing their skill at snapshooting and rapid firing. They are as keen as can be. A number of minor events were also decided during the day, including the McQueen sniping competition, the Broad Arrow (rapid firing), and Wantage (snapshooting), and there were also several sweeps. A start was made, too, with the new sporting feature of the meeting, the clay bird shooting competition.

Naval men are doing the marking and carrying out other range duties this year, the Admiralty coming to the rescue of the National Rifle Association owing to the difficulty experienced by the War Office in finding the necessary men. The presence of the Bluejackets on the range is, of course, greatly welcomed. Their camp, gay with flags, is a picture of neatness and orderliness.

C.P.O. W. Gray and C.P.O. F. E. Morton, who were in the British rifle team in Australia last year, are among the naval contingent who have arrived in the camp for participation in many of the principal competitions. Morton was third in the King's last year. C.W.O. Newmarch (Excellent) made a possible 25 in a sweep during the morning. Several more entries have been received for the competition for the King's Prize. So far as the scores in to-day's Gale and Polden shoot are known, 92 was the highest score obtained for the two distances of 200 and 500 yards. This total was reached by Cadet Sherratt (Mill Hill School), with scores of 47 and 45, respectively. Next best score came from Cadet Good (Denstone College), who put on 44 at 200 yards and 47 at 500. Three boys of Victoria College, Jersey, made good scores. Sergeant C. Fallon made 91 and Corporal Manley and Corporal Stevenson 90 each. The total scores in all cases were not available, but it was learned that at 200 yards scores of 47 were returned by Corporal C. D. Danks (Malvern College), Cadet J. B. Withers (Denstone College), Sergt. R. M. Bell (Cranleigh School). Scores of 46 were put up by Under Officer Marson (Tonbridge), Corporal T. Langham (Mill Hill School), and Lce.-Corporal J. K. Clisby (Wellington College). At 500 yards Lance-Corporal Lew (Eton College) scored 48 out of a possible 50. Pte. A. E. M. Cunnis (Eton College) and Corporal R. O. Masefield (Charterhouse) each scored 47. Scores of 46 were recorded by R. C. Gatehouse (Bradfield College), Sergt. E. R. Skipwith (Oundle), Cadet A. Moir (Edinburgh Academy), Cadet Bockey (Dulwich College), Cadet Eccles (Winchester), Corporal M. Stevenson (Victoria College, Jersey), and Cadet H. A. S. Wilkinson (Marlborough College). It should be stated that the boys from Scotland are firing under a disadvantage. About three weeks ago they had to hand in their rifles owing to the coal crisis. The rifles were stored in Edinburgh Castle, and, consequently, they were not able to put in much practice.

The Clay Bird Shooting attracted several well-known shots this afternoon. Captain E. H. Robinson, R.A.F., Major H. Northover, a Canadian, and late R.A.F., had several practice sweeps, and both "killed" eight birds out of ten. The clay bird is shot in the air by a spring, which is released on the competitor's command "pull." The birds are thrown up at different angles each time, and keep the competitors on the qui vive. Later in the meeting several competitions will be held, and some of the crack Bisley shots are getting in plenty of practice.

The rapid firing competition among public schoolboys for the "Daily Graphic" medals resulted last night as follows:—C.S.M. Willistone (Brighton College), 46, silver medal; Cadet Officer J. A. Barr (Tonbridge), 45, bronze medal; Sergeant Blackman (King's College School), 43.

The public schools' snap-shooting match was decided also, Oundle winning the "Daily Graphic" challenge trophy with a total of 434. Each member of the team receives a silver souvenir given by the N.R.A. Tonbridge were second with 426, and Wellington third with 424. Lance-Corporal Mitchell made top score for Oundle with 63, Corporal Wicks being the second highest scorer with 60.

Numbers of the Central Committee of the Communist Party in Lithuania have been arrested (says a Kovno telegram, dated Wednesday).

STOCKS CLOSED HEAVY.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, THURSDAY.

Stocks opened irregular, and weakened on realising in Oils, Steels, Equipments, and Shippings; then rallied strongly under pool interests buying, Studebaker Common, and an accumulation of other Specialities in a strong technical position. Railroads were extensively bought on the announcement stating that the Administration would advance an additional $500,000,000 under the proposed Refunding Plan. The market finally reacted in sympathy with the weakness of Sugars, Mexican Petroleum, and Baldwin Locomotive, and closed heavy.

AMERICAN COAL IN LIMERICK.

A Special Correspondent informs us that American gas coal, which was shipped by the Colliery Investment Trust of America, Incorporated, on the steamer Westcape, has been unloaded at Limerick, and has given great satisfaction, the coke being equal to that produced by the best Durham coal, and the quantity and quality of the gas produced being of exceptionally high standard. Remarks have been overheard in Limerick on the good illuminating and heating power of the gas.

IRISH GUILD OF WITNESS.

A LITANY OF HOLY LIVING.

(Offered among the people of Ireland, who intercede for their country now lying in darkness and the shadow of death.)

PRAYER.

O heavenly Father, who dost promise to them that love Thee that they shall behold the Tree of Life, whose fruits are of Thy Spirit, and whose leaves are for the healing of the nations, grant that even out of all this turmoil be prayers of men may rise up to Thee in the beauty of holiness that we being lifted up towards Thee may lay hold on Thy beauty.

THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT IS LOVE.

Enlighten us, O God, that our prayers may be perpetually and in very truth for the furtherance of Thy Kingdom, and that they may involve right thought, and bear fruit in right action.

Pour down upon us all such knowledge, wisdom and understanding that by the spirit of love we may be enabled to cope with the troubles of the times in which we are living.

Incline Thine ear unto us, O Lord, when we petition Thee for all who have committed murder, or who are guilty of hatred or cruelty that they may learn of Thy love.

Grant increasing knowledge of the protecting healing power of Thy love to all who are exposed to the bodily and spiritual dangers of these troubled times.

Father of Love, hear our prayer.

THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT IS JOY.

Maintain in our hearts, O Lord, Thy perpetual gift of Pentecost, as a lasting witness of the permanence of Thy truth, and assurance to us of the final triumph of righteousness in Ireland and throughout the world.

Give us grace to put aside the despondency and hopelessness of these tragic days and to serve Thee with constant gladness.

Deliver us, O Lord, from all the sins of formal religion, and so inspire Thy Church in our land as to enable it to arise to the fulness of its spiritual opportunities.

Enable us to worship Thee, O Lord, with the fulness of national life, that every true manifestation of Ireland's soul may be made to serve for the increase of our delight in Thee.

O God, of whom is the Spirit of Joy, hear our prayer.

THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT IS PEACE.

We pray Thee, O Lord, that we may be able to overcome all faction, rivalry and party spirit by the knowledge of Christ and of the unifying power that is in Him.

Grant, O Lord, that Thy Holy Spirit may reveal to us through the ever-changing present the true Ireland of the future lying behind the inadequate ideals which to-day war one against another.

We pray Thee that all those great and noble qualities which have been engendered amongst us by the war of ideals may converge in a great vision of citizenship in time of peace.

Grant, O Lord, that a true love for Ireland may bring us into a right relation with England and with all other countries.

Make all lovers of peace to dwell in Thy secret place and to abide under Thy shadow, fearing neither terror by night nor destruction at noon day.

God of Peace, hear our prayer.

THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT IS LONG-SUFFERING.

May we never forget, O Lord, in all the evil that is about us that Thy suffering is greater than ours, and may our powers of endurance ever be inspired by the thought of Thy patience.

Enlighten us, O Lord, that we may be able to endure as seeing Him who is invisible.

Grant to all those who have suffered special wrong that they may be saved from the madness of revenge, and may attain the spirit of full forgiveness.

Great God of sufferers, hear our prayer.

THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT IS KINDNESS.

Bless, O Lord, all organised effort to work for Thy Kingdom here in Ireland, whether by the purification of Thy Church, or by the banding together in national effort of Irish men and women.

We pray Thee, O Father, for the children of this land. Deliver them from the danger and hatred of the surroundings into which so many of them have been born. Inspire with Thy Spirit all who direct their education, that in the schools, colleges, and clubs of Ireland they may learn of Thy love, and of the citizenship of Thy Kingdom.

O heavenly Father, grant that family affection and established friendship may stand firm and strong in the face of political differences.

O God, of whom is the Spirit of Kindness, hear our prayers.

THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT IS GOODNESS.

Deliver us, O God, from all apathetic tolerance of the sinful incidents which mar the working out of Thy plan amongst us.

Remember in mercy all those who through fear of human opinion or of human revenge refuse to do what lies in their power to promote righteousness and peace.

Direct, O Lord, all governors upon whom is laid the burden of power in this age of revolution.

Grant that those whom Thou hast called to be leaders of the people may use Thy gifts of influence in Thy service.

Grant us Thy guidance in all that concerns reconstruction, and send Thy blessing on all efforts to make good the havoc which has taken place amongst us.

Good Father, hear our prayer.

THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT IS FAITHFULNESS.

Grant us, O Lord, Thy guidance in the political and economic life of our country, that statesmen and people, employers and employed, may be ever filled with a right sense of duty.

Have mercy on all those who, possessing advantages of education and of leisure, do not contribute their share to the welfare of Ireland, and grant that they may learn the joy of giving faithfully.

Hear us, O Lord, when we ask a blessing on the clergy of Belfast, working amongst thousands of lapsed Churchpeople.

And when we pray for the lonely clergy of our country parishes, that they may not grow disheartened, but may use the many opportunities that lie around them, of helping their neighbours of all classes.

We pray Thee that we Irish men and women may never forget that upon us in the first place depends the happiness of our land, and that no outside power, be it of heaven or of earth, can bring us peace until we ourselves overcome hatred, with brotherly love and self-sacrifice.

God of the faithful, hear our prayer.

THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT IS MEEKNESS.

We pray Thee, O Father, in our perplexity and humiliation, that Thou wouldst forgive us all here in Ireland, and bring light and love and peace to our country and to the world.

We pray Thee that we may be led to see how we have contributed to Ireland's present misfortunes by the unreality of our religion.

We pray Thee that, realising always the smallness of our own vision, we may be enabled to see in the great social upheavals of the day the working out of Thy destiny for this Thy world.

We pray Thee that we may realise that we have one Master and that we all are brethren.

God of the meek and of them that delight in peace, hear our prayer.

THE FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT IS TEMPERANCE.

We pray Thee to give us such self-control and patience as may enable us to appreciate those of our brethren whose views are widely different from our own.

We pray Thee that we may have courage to abandon even cherished ideals, should the search after truth require it.

Father, help us by Thy Spirit of Temperance.

Enlighten us, O our Father, that we may ever see in the recurrence of nature's seasons a manifestation of Thine unchanging life, underlying all the changes and trials of human progress, and that seeing Thee in all things we may never forget the Christian duty of hopefulness; and so strengthen our belief in Thine over-ruling goodness that we may be enabled to work cheerfully for the common good, and so to live that all we do may be for the glory of God and the honour of Ireland.

Copies of the Litany in booklet form may be had, price 6d., from the Secretary, Irish Guild of Witness, 21 Upper Mount St., Dublin, or Mr. Wm. Tempest, Dundalk.

IRISH STOCK EXCHANGES.

DUBLIN.

WAR FIVES, BANK STOCK, AND LEADING RAILS BUOYANT. MARCONIS AND DUNLOPS OFFERED.

There was an increase in investment support for the better class securities on 'Change yesterday, in which War Loan 5 p.c. joined after the past few days' dulness, but actual business remains poor and fitful in volume with quotations often made with a minimum of stock. Bank of Ireland Stock developed marked strength, with buyers bidding an advance of 4 points and sellers looking for 200, a rise of 7 on last price. Guinness were again harder, but Dublin Distillers Pref., recently on offer, fell back somewhat. City Steam remains good in tone, without any actual business being current. Marconis weakened further. Leading Home Rails were strong, and very little stock about. Provincial Trams were round about 10s., unofficially. Parent Tyres were offered at or under last prices, while Dunlop Rubber Ord. closed about 3d. lower, round 11s. 6d., unofficially. Textiles were quietly dealt in. Oils and Tobaccos were steadier.

The Funds closed firmer, but actual dealing was by no means general. War Loan 5 p.c. rose ⅛ to 88⅝, after all offered at 88¼ were absorbed. Consols repeated 47⅞. Irish Land and India Stocks were idle. Rathmines and Pembroke 4 p.c. Main Drainage rose 1⅛ to 70.

The feature in Banks was the sudden buoyancy of Bank of Ireland Stock, which closed 5¼ higher at 197 to 200 nominally. Hibernians rose 1/16 to 5, 5¼, and Nationals 1/16 to 17, while Munsters repeated 5¼.

In Breweries and Distilleries, Guinness Ord. rose ⅛ to 39¼; while Dublin Distillers Pref. fell 1/16 to 4¼.

City Steam Stock again closed 118 to 120. In Marconis, the Ord. fell 1s. 6d. to 42s. 6d.

Home Rails were strong. Great Northern rose another 1 to 59¼, the Pref. ½ to 52, 53, and Great Southern and Western 1 to 46¼. London and North Western realised 68 1/16.

In Tyres, Parent Ord. remain nominal at 14s. 3d., 14s. 6d., and the Def. closed 6d. weaker round about 33s. Dunlop Rubber Ord. closed about 11s. 6d.

In Manufacturing, a few Textiles alone quoted. Calico Printers rose 1½d. to 16s. 9d., but Coats fell 3d. more to 48s. 9d.

As regards Miscellaneous Securities, Irish Times Pref fell 6d. to 57s. 6d. Burmah Oil quoted 6¾, Mexican Eagles 5¼, ⅝, and Shells 5⅛, ⅜. Imperial Tobacco realised 48s. 7½d.

STOCKS DULL.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

Although business was probably scarcer yesterday than even during the earlier days of a particularly dull week, a slightly harder tendency developed in the investment market. Comment generally upon the new Treasury issue was inclined to be rather less pessimistic in tone, and in consequence here and there gilt-edged stocks appreciated to the extent of from ⅛ to ½ point. This was particularly noticeable in the case of the longer-dated War Bonds, which, on the previous day, had shown weakness as the result of the new loan announcement. There was also slightly more investment buying of the new Colonial and Corporation stocks, the new Reading 6 p.c. issue, in particular, continuing to be taken at 3⅛ prem. No effect followed the announcement that the Bank rate would remain unchanged, since that was the general anticipation, though, as we pointed out yesterday, the announcement of the new loan was thought to foreshadow a reduction at an early date.

LONDON STOCKS DULL.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

On the London Stock Exchange the markets continue quiet, and complaints were many regarding the small volume of business coming forward. The surprise of the new Treasury Bonds appears to have spent itself, and there was a better tone in the gilt-edged section. Renewed support was given to the 5 p.c. War Loan, which changed hands at 88 1/16. Consols were slightly lower at 47⅞, and Victory Bonds and Funding Loan were both ⅛ lower. Some of the National War Bonds rallied ⅛ to ½. Exchequer Bonds were better. The Tasmanian Scrip left off ⅛ discount, and South Australia was ¼ discount. The Conversion Loan rallied to 63, while the India 7 p.c. was quoted 103⅞; New Zealand Scrip is ⅛ discount.

Among Foreign Government securities there was but little change. Brazilians were supported, and several were quoted higher; the 1889 were up to 45 and the 1888 to 47. Mexican Fives were weaker at 58¼. French Fives were ⅛ higher at 44, while the Fours were steady at 34½. German Threes were 6; Chinese 4½ p.c. were rather better at 69½.

Home Rails showed no signs of recovery, though there was no pronounced depression. Great Westerns were steady at 64¼, but North-Western and South-Western were slightly lower at 68 and 19 respectively, and so were North-Eastern at 70¼. Yorks were offered at 25, Dover "A" receded to 21¼, and Brighton "A" to 39, while Great Easterns were only 26¼. Underground Income Bonds were better at 84.

"Canpacs" were 5 points higher at 149. Grand Trunks were generally unchanged. Mexican Rails were neglected. Among Argentines, Centrals were ¼ lower at 47⅛, while "B.A.G.S." and Westerns were both ½ lower at 52½. Leopoldinas were dull at 18⅛, and Havanas at 60.

INDUSTRIALS INACTIVE.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

In the Miscellaneous and Industrial market the tendency was dull and irregular, with movements very restricted in the absence of business. Some disappointment was felt at the failure to lower the Bank rate, though the more hopeful element began to talk of a reduction next week. In no direction was there any collective improvement. Here and there isolated securities closed higher, but where a definite trend was evinced in any department quotations sought lower levels. Anticipations regarding the repetition of a dividend of 10 p.c. tax free on General Electric Ordinary having proved correct, the shares were well supported, the price closing 21s., and an improvement was also seen in the Debs. at 1½ dis. Siemens Bros. kept the price at 22s. 3d., but English Electric were an easier market at 12s. In the Iron and Steel section, values showed a shrinkage, with Vickers weak at 13s., Ebbw Vale 3d. easier at 17s. 3d., and Armstrong's a dull market at 18s. Chinese Engineering were the only bright spot, with a gain of 1/16 at 4⅛. Shipping prices were practically unaltered, as also Coal Stocks, though William Cory were again changing hands at 45s. on the dividend and report. No alterations appeared in the Wireless group, Marconis being still 2⅛, which was also the quotation for the Pref. Marines were slightly harder at 1 3/16. Cables looked firmer, Western gaining 1/16 at 16⅛, and Globes ⅛ at 16⅞, while Henley's Telegraph Works hardened a few pence to 28s. 6d. In Textiles, Courtaulds rose above the prevailing dulness, the quotation being finally pushed forward again to 39s., after an easier opening at 38s. 3d. The rest of the group remained mostly unchanged, though Listers drooped to 18s. Calico Pref. were in demand, and closed 9d. higher at 12s. 6d. Drapery issues were merely steady at the improved levels, but in Caterers, J. Lyons continued on the up grade, closing 1/16 better at 2 1/16 ex-div. Among Nitrates, San Sebastian provided the only notable change at 7s., or 1s. up on the day, but Rio Lands were marked up afresh in Land and Investments to 4s. 4d., Forestals being finally unaltered at 24s. Bank shares were maintained, with Barclays A good on the interim dividend at 6⅞, Chartered of India ¼ up at 14¼, and Hong Kong and Shanghai a point to the good at 90. In the Brewery group, dealings commenced in Booth's Distillery Ord. on the basis of 15s. 6d. to 16s. 6d. for the 13s. shares. Speculative transactions continue to influence the British Oil and Cake Mills, which further declined to 26s. 9d., or 6d. lower on balance. Lever issues kept steady, the 7 p.c. closing 14s. 10½d., and the 8 p.c. 15s. 10½d., or the turn harder. British Glass picked up a little after the drop of the previous day, closing 5s. 3d., while other miscellaneous improvements included British and Argentine Meat 3d. up at £1, and Imperial Tobacco a few pence better at 48s. 6d. In the Motor group, Rolls Royce eased 1/16 to 1 1/16, and Humber rose 6d. to ½. Maypoles were unchanged at 7s. 4½d. among Margarine shares, Van Den Berghs advancing 1/16 to 1⅛. Raphael Tuck have been picked up lately, the price hardening again yesterday to 4¼. Lima 5½ p.c. Debs. were marked up to 73 ex-div. in the Electric Lighting list.

MINING MARKET QUIET.

STEADINESS CHARACTERISES MOST DEPARTMENTS, THOUGH BUSINESS REMAINS AT A VERY LOW EBB.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

In view of the limited amount of business passing, it is somewhat surprising to find markets so well maintained. Yesterday dealings were on quite a modest scale in all departments, and it was quite evident that the hope of more settled conditions, both financially and industrially, were solely responsible for the steadiness generally prevailing. Mining Shares could claim but scant attention either from the public or professionals, and nothing happened to arouse interest in Kaffirs. Most people realise that prospects on the Rand are gradually improving and that gold is likely to command a substantial premium for some time to come, but neither these conditions nor the knowledge that very high yields are obtainable on good class shares seems to stimulate demand. Transactions were once more of the hand-to-mouth order, and their influence on the course of prices was trifling as a rule, while a rise of 5d. to £5 10s. 9d. per oz. in the price of gold passed unnoticed. The fact that advices from the Cape were of a hopeful character helped to maintain the strength of such shares as Modderfontein and Government mines, but, apart from these, the usual leaders were content to remain at their lower levels, and on balance only about a dozen changes could be recorded. Closing prices:—

OIL SHARES DULL.

EARLY IMPROVEMENT IN MEXICAN EAGLES AND OTHER LEADING ISSUES NOT MAINTAINED.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

Firmness characterised the Oil Share market at the commencement of business yesterday, higher prices being quoted for the better class descriptions under the lead of Mexican Eagles. The early strength was attributable to bear covering, following the rally in Mexican Oil Shares overnight in New York. Business, however, came along very slowly, and was not of sufficient volume to allow of the early advance being maintained, and prices gradually receded, so that on balance changes were not of much importance. Mexican Eagles finished slightly lower. Paris was reported to be doing active business in Mexican Eagles, the transactions being reported to be largely on American account, but the dealings in that centre were not reflected on this side. One of the best spots was Royal Dutch, which met with a steady demand throughout the day, and, although finishing below the best, the shares still showed an improvement on balance. Business in Shells was of a quiet character, and the shares failed to maintain an early advance. Burmahs were a firm market, the meeting of the company showing the company to be in a very strong position. Trinidad descriptions commanded only a small amount of attention, and, while a small recovery occurred in Centrals, other members of the group left off without alteration. Russians remained idle and uninteresting. Closing prices:—

RUBBER SHARES INACTIVE.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

The attempts to bring about a better condition of affairs in the Rubber industry by further restriction of output and regulation of price have failed to impart any activity to the shares of the various companies, and former prices were mostly repeated. Rubber Trusts at 11s. 7½d. and Anglo-Dutch at 25s. 9d. were both the turn harder, but Vallambrosas were dull at 10s. 4½d., as were Linggis at 26s. Sumatra Para were a trifle better. Closing prices:—

THE MONEY MARKET.

NO MORE SIX MONTHS' TREASURY BILLS.

Bank Rate (changed June 23, 1921) ...... 6 p.c.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

On the London Money market during the morning there were hopes that the Bank rate would be further reduced, but no change was made. The Treasury has now suspended the sale of six months' Treasury bills at the Bank of England, leaving only three months' bills on offer. Very little business was done in the discount market. Discount rates were moved down fractionally in view of this latest action of the Treasury, but there was little stability about the market. The large amount which fell due at the Bank was repaid, and that made floating credits rather scarce during the greater part of the day. Running loans went on as before, but only in a few cases were balances available at the close. It is considered likely that to-day's Treasury bills will go at rather lower rates of discount than did last week's.

Bank Rate (Discount) changed June 23, 1921				6%

The price of gold was raised 5d. to 110s. 9d. per oz. fine. Bar silver was unaltered at 36⅛d. and 36d. per oz. cash and forward delivery respectively.

Among foreign exchanges what activity there was centred round New York, which opened at 3.71⅞, and came down by fractions, being at the close of public business about ⅛ cent against us on balance. Paris cheque did not move its usual way, and was in fact a few centimes in favour of France. Danish kroner depreciated, as did Spanish pesetas, but otherwise there was little change worth mentioning. The Brazilian milreis had another sharp relapse, and Polish marks slumped again.

BELLEWSTOWN MEETING—YESTERDAY.

ANOTHER BIG ATTENDANCE. TIERMOURNE WINS THE KING'S PLATE.

King's Plate day has always been the more popular one at Bellewstown, and yesterday there was even a larger attendance than on Wednesday. The racing was also quite as interesting, the fields being up to the strength of the previous day, while the weather again was of a genial character. Backers had by no means as good a time as they have been experiencing of late, and, to begin with, their fancy for the Crockafotha Plate, was early out of the reckoning. This was Sir William, who fell at a hurdle after going half a mile. Disaster also awaited Knight of Greenane, the second favourite, who, when leading in company with Glenlee, ran out of the course at the turn into the straight. These mishaps paved the way for an easy victory for The Tatler. The latter's stable companion, Tiermourne, who won a race at the Phoenix Park last Saturday, also won the King's Plate, in which she easily beat Southern Gleam and two others. Thus M. Dawson's stable brought off a double event, and as the Rathbride Manor trainer has not had the best of luck of late, no one begrudged him the successes. There was a rare turn-up in the Corporation Plate. The favourite, Gentle Jenny, refused to start and took no part in the race, and after Tory Island had flattered for a considerable part of the journey the outsider, Charabanc, came upon the scene, and in the end won in easy style. Ben Cruchan made amends for his defeat by Ischevaha at Mullingar by winning the Stewards' Plate. At no part of the race did he leave the issue in doubt, as he was galloping over the others all through. Hester Island proved the best of a moderate quintette in the Leggan Hall Plate, in which the favourite, William W., fell; and the last race was won by Battle Royal, who thus gained his second success on a racecourse. RACECOURSE GLEANINGS.

KAMAKURA DISAPPOINTS. VICTORY OF DRAKE'S DRUM.

(SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED.)

SALISBURY, THURSDAY NIGHT.

It is not many years since the present stand at Salisbury was erected, but it was never a suitable structure, and before the next racing on the historic course a new stand is to be constructed in Tattersall's Ring. It is to accommodate seventeen thousand, and will be built at a more suitable angle.

The meeting has been anything but a benefit for Manton-trained horses, though this is the fixture much favoured by Alec Taylor. A particularly disappointing defeat was that of Kamakura in the Alington Plate, and it is not much consolation to those concerned that the horse should have won. When Brennan took up the running the race appeared to be over, but he did not appear to realise the impending danger from Pretty, on whom H. Wheatley rode with great skill, to score a head victory.

After his second to Pondoland, Drake's Drum appeared to dominate the Champagne Stakes. He was a perfect picture in the paddock, his four white stockings being most conspicuous. He is a well-built colt, and a credit to his sire, the late Lord Londonderry's Corcyra. He had been beaten a head here in the spring by Wild Arum filly, but there was now a difference of 7lbs. in the weights.

For a long way, however, it looked as though the previous running would be confirmed, for Hulme, on Lord Carnarvon's filly, drew out with a very decided lead. In fact there was only some hundred yards to go when Beary got on terms. Then it was plain sailing, for Drake's Drum's longer stride soon determined the issue. It was not, however, a particularly brilliant effort on the part of the winning jockey, and he ought never to have left the issue in doubt.

George Duller stood out by himself when opposing four members of the Bibury Club on his father's horse, Saintly Sinner, who had been driven out from evens to 9 to 4 in the morning. The display of several of the amateurs was ludicrous, and Duller got his mount home practically without an effort.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

There was a heavy rainfall in the Naas district on Wednesday night, which considerably benefited the going on the racecourse.

M. Dawson, the Rathbride Manor trainer, scored a double event at Bellewstown yesterday with The Tatler and Tiermourne.

The Royal Yacht Squadron will give a special prize to the first American six-metre yacht to finish in the first British-American Cup Race at Cowes Regatta, and the town of Cowes will give a cup for the first American yacht in the second cup race.

IRISH HUNTER STUD BOOK SOCIETY.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee, held in the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, yesterday, it was decided to offer a silver cup at Wexford Show this year for the best registered hunter mare, thus making fifteen cups at provincial shows this year. Captain Eccles submitted the report of the Irish Pony Show Committee, in which it was stated that all the prize money had been paid within a week of that show, and that its financial success was largely due to the strong support accorded to it by horse-breeders throughout Ireland.

CHANTICLEER'S NOTES.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM.)

MANCHESTER, THURSDAY NIGHT.

From a speculative point of view the chief event at Haydock Park to-morrow will be the Great Central Handicap, in which Desmond House, Coriolanus, Count Palatine, and Thoughtless appear to hold the brightest chances, and I fancy Count Palatine, who is a previous winner here. My selections are:—

July Plate—Selene.
Friday Sweepstakes—Nonchalante.
Great Central Handicap—Count Palatine.
White Lodge Plate—Special.
Makerfield Handicap—Pickering.
Lowton Stakes—Gerunda.

The entries obtained for Lingfield July programme are quite remarkable, and it is with some diffidence that one suggests that some of the horses selected below may run well:—

Waterside Handicap—Martinmas; if absent, Avocet.
Oak Tree Plate—Going Up.
Batnors Plate—Black Ray or Mill Pool filly.
Summer Handicap—Chamarmin.
Lingfield Park Stakes—Taylor's selected; if absent, Roman Fiddle.
Jacks Bridge Plate—Cottrill's best.

MARKET REPORTS.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN METROPOLITAN, North Circular road, Thursday.—In view of the withdrawal of embargo on shipments of live stock from here, but a ten hours' detention on landing at the other side, there was a decidedly better attendance of cross-Channel men, many returning after an absence of several months, consequently there was an appreciable expansion in the off-take, two Manchester and two Birkenhead boats, besides a L.N.W.R. and a Scotch boat, due to sail with capacity cargoes of cattle, lambs, and some sheep. The bigger supplies in both branches of our market, however, rather broke up the cohesion of things, and kept prices on a weak basis, especially for sheep. The primer lots of bullocks and heifers sold at about last day's best rates, but sheep, particularly heavy qualities, were difficult to negotiate, and again at generally less money. Little change was established in the value of lambs. Although prices at this side are cut of plumb, and remain a misfit to speculative trading across Channel. Scotch and leading English markets seems to be well supplied with meat on foot at present, and the margin is too tight to suit dealers or commission men. The freight question, too, looms to be a serious handicap on the back. It is almost preposterous that lambs from Dublin to Liverpool, or other near abbatoirs, cost 3d. per lb. to handle in freights, as between here and yonder.

Numbers on sale This week as compared with last.

			Corresponding week of 1920.	1919.
Cattle	3,144	Increase 514	4,847	2,785
Sheep and lambs	11,368	Decrease 342	11,511	9,963
Veal Calves	9	Increase 6	6	4

The beast market opened with a generally better tone, and with the return of many of our leading English clients and a few extra Northern men, the demand to-day extended to the heavier classes of cattle, as well as medium sorts, which were selling so well previously. Last week's top prices here and there for the nicest lots of bullocks and heifers were perhaps realised more freely, but generally buying moved in a cautious routine, and it was difficult to obtain full prices in every instance, more particularly dealing with rougher element of things. The show of cattle in point of quality gave a fine selection of grandly finished descriptions. Towards the close the big supply commenced to tell unfavourably on trade, but at most, terms cannot be considered worse than last day's working scale, while in some instances cattle held over from Thursday last were placed from 20/- to 40/- better advantage this morning, but that does not mean that cattle were dearer in the main. Choice bullocks and heifers in top scale ran made 70/- to 73/- per cwt., and in a few very rare fancy cases 74/- to 75/- was recorded. Good medium cattle were from 65/- to 68/- per cwt. Fat cows were a wretched slow and irregular sale, and even more depressed than heretofore; 52/6 to 55/- was paid for cwt., the best average prices for beefs cows on foot, although 57/6 and occasionally 60/- was paid for something above the ordinary. Slaughter bullocks were hard to realise to advantage, and would mean 42/6 to 57/6 and 60/- per cwt.

The sheep market was as dull, irregular and uncertain as before. Values generally were another couple of shillings worse, but a considerable number of pens, particularly of heavy sheep, were passed by rather even prices, showing that the supply was far beyond requirements. Choicest qualities of wether mutton may be reckoned at 1/1/4 to 1/2 per lb., and fancy classes 1/2½ per lb. Other sorts, say, 10d. to 1/0½, according to character. A fair trade for lambs, the bulk being taken for shipment. However, business was only practicable within a certain range of prices. For best run of lambs rates may be set down as 70/- to 80/- apiece, and extras 85/-, occasionally 90/-; large, very coarse Medium qualities from 46/- to 68/- each; thin and inferior sorts 36/- to 44/- apiece. Nine veal calves on market, which made from about 1/- to 1/2 per lb., but the enquiry was very slow.

SIXMILEBRIDGE JULY FAIRS (On G.S. and W. Railway).

Fairs Committee desire to inform Cattle, Sheep, and Horse Dealers that the Cattle and Sheep Fair on Wednesday of Next Week and the Horse Fair on Thursday will be the largest Fairs in the West of Ireland.—(Advt.)

DUBLIN DAIRY (North Circular road), Thursday.—Just 204 milch exhibits on market. Trade generally quiet, but values for ordinary run of dairy cows are maintained at about previous level, while occasional outstanding tip-toppers are again inclined to work into an exceptionally dear zone. Owners were not shy in asking between £40 and £50 for well bred heavy fresh milchers here to-day, and in several cases £45, £48, and in a couple of instances £47 was paid. Average dairies, £33 to £38, and fair, £27 to £32, and small, £16 to £25 apiece.

DUBLIN PIG (North Circular road), Thursday.—There were just 1,562 swine entered for sale here this morning, being 89 head less than last week. The attendance of buyers was of a full and representative character, and, with embargo removed on shipments, heavy pigs received more attention. Generally the market was supported on a keener buying basis up to 9 o'clock, after which energy and stability died off. However, over the day's proceedings nothing could be purchased below last week's values, while early business prime bacon pigs and porkers were a £7 per cwt. dead weight. Quotations:—Choice stout and medium-weight hogs, £6 12/6 to £7 2/6 per cwt.; heavy, £5 17/6 to £6 10/-; sow pigs no better, say, 75/- to 85/- and 90/- per cwt.; young stores slow; suckers, 20/- and upwards; slips, 60/- each to [illegible]

BIRMINGHAM, Thursday.—Pigs in short supply. Good trade for bacons, which advanced to 26/- per score, dead weight; small pigs less active, 24/- to 25/-; sows also unchanged at 19/-.

BRISTOL, Thursday.—Beef moderate 150/- to 160/- per cwt., best, dead weight. Mutton fair; heavy, 13d. per lb., best; light wethers, 1/6; lamb, 1/8 to 1/10. No pigs. 150 Irish store cattle, which are now free, on demand owing to drought. Milch cows up to £55.

YORK, Thursday.—A very small show of store cattle, comprising a few Irish out of quarantine and some English stirks. Farmers are declining to buy for wintering stock until prices fall, and practically no trade was done. Very small show of sheep; no inquiry for beef class.

THE STRATHMORE AUCTION CO., LTD., GLASGOW, Wednesday.—Supplies—880 cattle; 2,700 sheep. Home-fed and Irish bullocks and heifers of good finish met a fairly good demand at improved prices. Anything secondary and aged cows and bulls were not wanted. The trade for sheep and lambs was much better. Bullocks and heifers made 78/- to 92/6 per cwt. live weight; cows and bulls, 40/- to 57/6 do. do.; sheep, 1/4 to 1/10 per lb.; lambs, 60/- to 106/6 each. The stores offered were principally 2 to 2½ year-old polly bullocks and shorthorn stirks. Owing to recent drought, the former were slow to sell, but there was a good demand for stirks at from £14 to £23.—(Advt.)

Lever's Palm Nut Cake, Binder Twine, £4 15/- cwt., carriage paid.—Agent, W. Rourke, 36 North Circular road, Dublin.—(Advt.)

LIVERPOOL, Thursday.—C.i.f. parcels of free wheat early on were generally held for higher prices, but business reported is on about yesterday's parity. Sales covered No. 1 Manitoba October-November at 64/9, No. 2 hard winter July-August 62/- to Liverpool, and No. 2 hard winter July-August 62/-, and No. 2 red winter loading 65/6 per qr. to Manchester. C.i.f. parcels maize River Plate June-July sold at 39/6, and American mixed July quoted 39/- per qr. WHEAT on the spot ruled quiet but steady at recent currencies. MAIZE spot parcels were in moderate request at late rates. FLOUR moderately active at unchanged prices. Graded red wheat futures were entirely neglected, but, with more encouraging American advices, closed nominally 1½d. per cental over last night. Closing values—October 13/6½, December 13/4½ per cental. Yellow Plate maize opened 1d. per cental lower, but afterwards recovered somewhat on sellers showing more reserve, the market closing quiet at ½d. to ¾d. decline on the day. Closing values—July 9/8½, September 9/7¼ per cental.

BRISTOL, Thursday.—No English wheat. Foreign shows indications of improvement. Millers more interested in spot wheat. Grinding barley quiet; business restricted owing to lack of water for mills. Maize steady at late rates. Oats in fair demand with hardening tendency.

MANCHESTER, Thursday.—Business was restricted, the Royal visit having to some extent influenced business. Wheat was quiet and easier. Indian corn No. 2 American mixed quoted 9/7 per 100lbs. Oats quietly steady without much change on the week.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Thursday.—The firmness in the BACON market here continues for all selections, with American Cumberlands and bellies in fair demand and not too plentiful, prices of latter tending against buyers. Wiltshires attract little attention, while long clears and backs meet a moderate inquiry for shipments to Ireland. Canadian Wiltshires firm, with a continued good demand for sizeable weights owing to the scarcity of other high-grade cuts. Irish still scarce, and held at 190/- to 200/- ex factory, with Danish, Swedish, and Dutch finding a ready outlet. HAMS again rule strong and more or less nominal at 180/- for long and short cut owing to extreme scarcity. Shoulders firm and pigs almost unobtainable. LARD on the spot is firm and dearer for both prime steam and American refined, with a fair demand, especially for boxes of latter. Compounds moves moderately at the recent improvement. CHEESE strong and active, with prices still trending upwards. New Zealand being quoted 116/- to 120/- cwt. BUTTER firmly held and buyers operate to a fair extent in Danish and Irish creameries. EGGS remain steady without material alteration in value.

PATRICK KEHOE, Ltd., Irish Bacon Curers and Lard Refiners. Importers of American Provisions. (Estd. 100 years.)—103 FRANCIS ST., DUBLIN.—(Advt.)

REFINED LARD "FUTURES."—LIVERPOOL, Thursday.—Following the sharp rise in Chicago, values here improved 1/3 per cwt. on good buying, but afterwards receded somewhat on sellers becoming more numerous, the early session finishing 3d. over last night. July sold at 81/6, September 82/4, 85/-, 82/3, 82/6, October 82/- per cwt. Afternoon cables were easier and market ruled quiet, closing only 3d. to 6d. over last night. July sold at 81/- and September 82/3, closing July 81/3 and September 82/3, October quoted 81/3 to 82/6 per cwt.

DUBLIN POTATO, Thursday.—Good supplies of new potatoes came in again this morning, and proved hard to make a clearance of, judging by the lateness of the carts to be seen about town. Factors posted prices as before, viz., 14/- per cwt. for Epicures and 16/- per cwt. for British Queens. Thus Dublin folk have to pay 4/- to 6/- per cwt. above what the same Irish potatoes can be purchased in Liverpool for, although freights have to be reckoned in. Considering the difficulty of finding a ready distribution of supplies about town from shop to shop, too, that factors are fixing terms rather high for local delivery.

DUBLIN VEGETABLE, Thursday.—Supplies generally on a smaller scale. Cabbage, indeed, scarce and dear. Good all round demand; strawberries, currants, much as before. Black currants average 10d. per lb.; cucumbers, 3/- to 4/6, 5/-, and selected 7/- and 8/- per dozen; cauliflowers, 3/- to 6/-, cost 2/9 per dozen; York cabbage, 20/- to 35/-, 44/-, 60/- and 60/- per load; rhubarb 3/- to 6/-, 8/-, and 10/- per dozen bunches; carrots, 1/4 to 2/6 ditto; white turnips, 1/- to 1/6 per bundle; scallions, 9d. to 1/- and 1/6; Tripoli onions, 9d. to 1/- per bundle; lettuce, 1/- to 1/6 and 2/2 per dozen; tomatoes, 1/- to 1/4 per lb.; parsley, 1/6 to 2/6 and 3/6 per tray and float; thyme, 2/- per dozen, or 2d. to 6d. per bunch; mint, 10d. to 1/4 per dozen.

DUBLIN FISH, Thursday.—With a moderate general supply of hook and trawl fish, 40 packages salmon, 20 chests lobsters, and 60 packages herrings specially featured. Trade quiet, and prices on the easier side. Leading sales averaged:—Salmon, 1/6 to 2/- per lb.; grilse, 1/- to 1/4; trout, 10d. to 1/3 per lb.; best lobsters, 10/- to 15/- per 13; seconds, 5/- to 7/6; small, 1/- to 3/6 and 4/- per lot; turbot and brill scarce; best soles, 20/- to 25/- per 9 pairs; mediums, 10/- to 15/-; slips, 5/- to 7/6 per 9 pairs; large plaice, 9/- to 8/- per 4/-, others, 3/- to 6/- and 8/- per 18; half-boxes of plaice, 65/- to 80/-; codfish, 40/- to 60/-; conger eels, 20/- to 25/-; ray, 10/- to 20/-; whiting, 2/- to 4/6 per hank.

BILLINGSGATE FISH, Thursday.—Supply fair; demand moderate. Salmon, 17d. to 24d.; grilse, 14d. to 22d.; soles and slips, 18d. to 23d. per lb.; turbot, 11/- to 14/-; brill, 11/- to 12/-; plaice, 12/- to 15/-; halibut, 10/- to 15/-; lemon soles, 14/- to 15/-; cod, 6/- to 8/-; whiting, 4/- to 5/-; gurnet, 5/- to 6/-; hake, 5/- to 7/-; haddocks, 5/- to 6/-; roker wings, 9/- to 10/-; bream, 4/- to 5/- per stone.

BRADFORD, Thursday.—Although the output of tops and yarns is increasing daily, as more machinery is running, and deliveries are recommencing on old orders, new business remains quiet. STORE CATTLE SALES.

MESSRS. R. AND J. WILKINSON.—Unfortunately the removal of restrictions on shipping did not impart any life to the trade, as conditions across the Channel, owing to the continued drought and very unstable state of the beef market, are most discouraging. There was only a very limited inquiry for shipment, and out of a carefully catalogue the following were the principal sales effected, which embrace horned and polled bullocks and A.A. crosses—£37 (66/6), £35 (67/-), £34 (66/-), £33 15/- (66/-), £32 10/- (66/6), £32 (64/6), with top price for heifers £32 15/-, or 68/6 per cwt.

Our Portrait is of Mr. John Kidd, of 17 Williams, Kilmarnock, who writes:—

"My right arm became covered with sores from wrist to elbow, and was useless for over two years. I tried different ointments and so-called cures, but they never did me any good. Then I tried you 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and the sores soon began to heal up, and power began to come back to my arm, so I persevered with the Mixture, and after having four bottles am glad to say my arm is completely healed up, and I have now the full use of it." In a further letter over a twelvemonth later Mr. Kidd writes:—"I have had no return of my complaint. My arm is still as sound as a bell, and never troubles me in the least."

CLARKE'S BLOOD MIXTURE, by reason of its remarkable blood purifying properties, can be relied upon to give speedy relief and lasting benefit in cases of Eczema, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Boils, Pimples, Piles, Glandular Swellings, Rheumatism, Gout.
